Health Services Board backs bed consolidation

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

The Acting Health Services Board has agreed with the principle of consolidating the county's acute care beds in Haliburton.

In an 11-3 vote at Wednesday night's meeting at Our Lady of Fatima Church in Minden, the board voted in favour of Bev MacDuff's motion to

- consolidate up to 19 acute care beds at the Haliburton Hospital
- provide five to seven stabilization beds at Hyland Crest
- provide 24-hour emergency care at the Hyland Crest site

"It starts the negotiation process," MacDuff says. "You can't negotiate when you don't know what you're negotiating... If you can't accomplish all of it, let's try to accomplish some of it."

Several board members had problems with the second and third part of the motion but agreed that the motion moved the process forward.

One of the biggest problems facing the board is that can only spend the $10.6-million approved by the Ministry of Health last December. This money must also pay for the construction of 30 long-term care beds at the Haliburton site and the upgrading of Hyland Crest.

Given these financial restrictions, it seems unlikely the board would be able to afford even five stabilization beds. Both the executive director of the Haliburton Kawartha, Pine Ridge Health Unit, Marshall Elliott, and the executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital say that with present funding, "it's not doable."

"You need to be realistic about what you can afford," Lussing said.

The Ministry is trying to reduce the number of beds across the province, he said. "There's an axiom we use: if you build a bed it's a filled bed... The danger of (using the term stabilization beds) is people will think it will be a semi-hospital. Every urgent care facility will have them but they're not true in-patient beds."

(In past discussions, the Ministry has talked of having an

Forest owners postpone deadline

Trails will be open and winter businesses are "ready and raring to go"

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

Local business owners are breathing easier this week following the Haliburton Forest Owners' Association's decision to back down — for now — on its threat to close off private trails this winter to snowmobilers and skiers.

The Nov. 1st deadline to close the trails was being used to put pressure on the provincial government to reinstate in some form the Managed Forest Tax Rebate program. In a press release issued Wednesday, HFOA member Peter Schleifenbaum announced the postponement of the deadline until Nov. 1st of 1995.

"Recognizing the combined interests of the community and the economic losses that may occur... coupled with the apparent agenda of this government, the association resolved to provide to the community a window to express its concerns for remedies to the government and decided to extend the deadline," wrote Schleifenbaum, co-owner of Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve.

In the statement, Schleifenbaum accused the province of attempting "to shift the promotion of winter activities (especially snowmobiling) and related tourism to (Northern Ontario)" and of being "uninterested in the concerns of the local snowmobiling industry and its impact on the economies of Central Ontario."

The press release also said that the forest owners' motivation behind the extension was "to demonstrate their concern for their community, which they are not willing to penalize for this government's incompetence and hidden agendas."

With the threat of trail closures now behind them for this season at least, local businesses who rely on winter tourism are "raring and ready to go," said Brian Watts, president of the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association (HCSA), which despite having contingency plans in place if the closure occurred, would have been seriously affected by the shut down.

"Naturally we are very pleased with the decision and that cooler heads prevailed," Watts said. "I was hoping it would happen because you never want to look to the worst."

With the annual International Snowmobiler's Show being held last weekend in Markham, the timing for the announcement could not have been better, said Watts. "We are getting ready for the show so that was part of the urgency for us and now we'll have a positive story to tell to people," said Watts prior to the weekend show.

He said that the HCSA will maintain its support of the forest owners and have offered to help in formulating "some sort of plan for after the next (provincial) election to get the forest owners on a level playing field."

Gloria Carnochan of Backwoods Marina, who recently launched a letter-writing campaign to members of parliament and Premier Bob Rae, said that while she is "ecstatic" about the forest owners' decision, "just because the pressure has been taken off of us as business owners doesn't mean we should take the pressure off the government" to find a solution to the owners' dilemma. "We are grateful for the decision made by property owners but we hope the public will continue to write letters and do what is in their power to get this issue resolved."

Doug Kaufmann, manager of Kennisis Lake Marina, said that with the threat of the closure no longer hanging over their heads, "it's certainly going to relieve our customers as far as doubts of whether or not they should purchase or rent a snowmobile. It should definitely help our sales."

Winter bookings for the marina, he added, "are way down. Usually by now we have a fair

Accusations and "dirty politics" disgust Glamorgan reeve

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Glamorgan Reeve Bev MacDuff is disgusted that her husband has been publicly accused of stealing her competitors' campaign signs.

The Minden OPP received an "anonymous tip" that Bradley MacDuff had stolen more than 60 campaign signs and stored them in their garage. Last Tuesday, Mr. MacDuff was stopped by a police officer and told of the accusation. Although the officer did not have a search warrant, Mr. MacDuff invited him to search all the buildings at the MacDuffs' Gooderham home. No signs were found.

"It's a sad state of affairs when politics gets this bad and dirty," says Mrs. MacDuff, who is campaigning to retain her position as reeve. "I'm more disgusted than anything else to know someone would go to this degree in a municipal election... This is horrendous."

Last week, one of Mrs. MacDuff's opponents, Councillor Lorrie Saville, phoned the Echo to say that more than 60 campaign signs had been stolen. Saville said rumours had been circulating about who was responsible, although no one had been charged by the police.

The timing couldn't be worse for the MacDuffs. "How convenient it gets in the paper the day the police want to search our premises," Mrs. MacDuff says. "My husband told them they didn't need a search warrant because he had nothing to hide."

All last week, her husband was asked about the search and whether he stole the signs. Even people in Haliburton were talking to him about it. It was particularly distressing because her husband is a member of the Glamorgan Police Support

A FAMILY AFFAIR: Bryan Brown presents the Chamber of Commerce's Business of the Year Award to Ray and Gloria Moore and their son Scott(left) of Westside Jug City.

Westside Jug wins Business of Year

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

They are the perfect example of what it takes for a business to survive in the fast-changing, make-or-break 1990s. A strong business sense and devotion to the community are among the many reasons why the Moore family's Westside Jug City has stayed on top against all odds and circumstances. Those are also some of the attributes that earned them the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce Business Award of the Year.

What began with just 700 square feet 14 years ago in Gravenhurst as a typical Mom and Pop operation called West Side Variety and Discount, the Westside Jug City franchise (under the parent company Oshawa Foods) arrived in the Highlands in 1985 and now has facilities in Minden, Haliburton, Bracebridge, Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls.

As social and business leaders in the region, Ray and Gloria Moore and their eight children (sons Brian, Keith and Scott, daughter Rawn and son-in-law Doug Brown all are involved in the business while son Daryl and his wife Kelly have opened a bowling alley on the floor below the Minden store) have contributed to just about every aspect of community life.

"No matter whether it was minor hockey, men's soccer, children's baseball, Santa Claus parades and high school scholarships, the Moore family and Westside Jug City always seemed to be there for all of us," said Bryan Brown in presenting the award.

For those reasons it was only a natural instinct for the community to rally around the family and help pick up the pieces after a February fire destroyed their Hwy 35 location. The fact that they were back in business "bigger and better" after just six months is a testament to the family and the community as a whole, said Brown.

In a brief acceptance speech in which she had to pause to regain composure, an obviously touched Mrs. Moore thanked the community for its "moral support and some of the more tangible support of everyone who was there for us."

Ray Moore said that when he first learned of the award "we tried to figure out why us?" He said the community's show of support after the fire "was very heart rending. We certainly weren't left out in the cold. To think how wonderful the people in this community really are

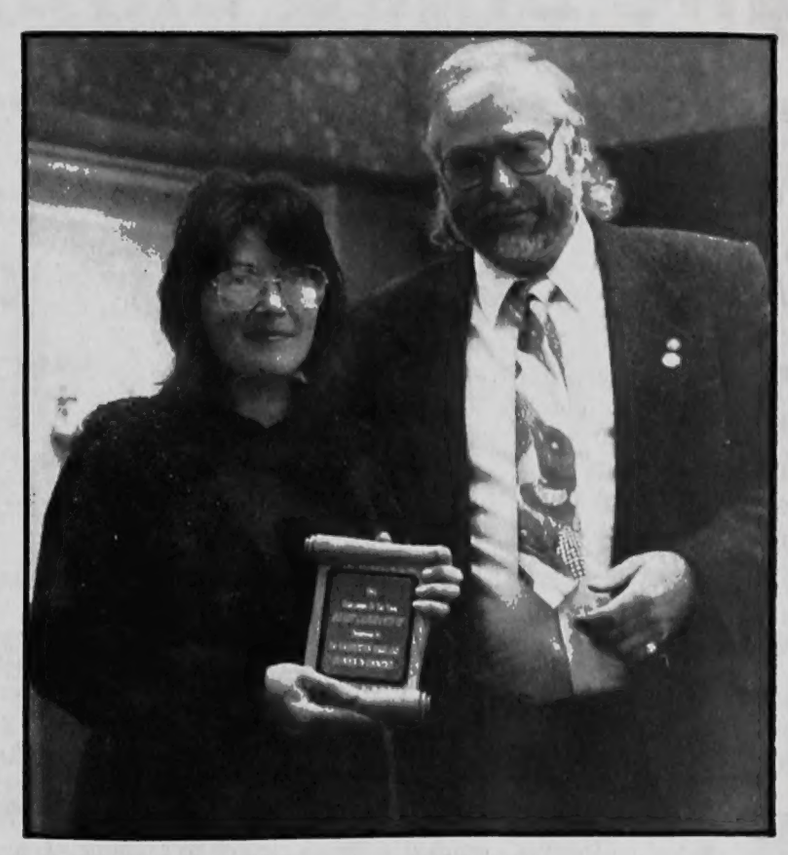
by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

For Wendy Ladurantaye, this year's Highlander of the Year, dreams really do come true.

The Sheridan College Fine Arts graduate, who has followed her dreams and operates her own stain-glass studio (called Dreams Come True, naturally),"epitomizes how Highland people would like to be seen by everyone," said award presenter Larry Tupling at Tuesday's annual meeting of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce at Wigamog.

A shocked and almost speechless Ladurantaye accepted the award saying "I thought I was just coming to dinner with friends. I just can't believe I've done anything to warrant this... I'm going to treasure this."

The Haliburton County Board of Education School Trustee spoke eloquently of the community which she has lived, for the most part, since her family arrived in 1964. "We have so much to offer in this county and I am so proud of it as I know all of you are. It is such a wonderful place to raise a family and there is so much to offer to people."



RECOGNIZING COMMUNITY SPIRIT: Wendy Ladurantaye never dreamed that she'd be Highlander of the Year. Larry Tupling presented the award at the Chamber of Commerce's annual meeting at Wigamog.

Along with her role in contributing to the growth and success of the annual Studio Tour and producing newsletters for the Haliburton County Horseman's Association, the wife and mother of three also teaches a course in glass design production at the Haliburton School of Fine Arts. The Ladurantayes also have successful horse ranch in Ingoldsby called BriarWinds,

"This is just the highest honour," said Ladurantaye, bewildered by the award bestowed upon her. "You don't do the school board work or the Horseman's Association thing thinking that this will be good for the community, I do it because it's what I love it and they are the things that interest me the most."

Winning the award, she said, "was one of the biggest surprises of my life. It's such a shock and you almost feel bad."

Creative marketing key to selling county

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

In an age when it isn't what your selling that counts but rather how you package it, Haliburton County has entered a bold, new era of marketability and will continue to move ahead.

At last Tuesday's Annual General Meeting of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, Marketing Committee Chair Bryan Brown outlined a report of the past year's achievements and future plans for the continuous evolution of selling the region and expanding its attractability to tourists. As well, members got a glimpse of the Trails and Tours strategy plans presently being drawn up by consultants Marshall Macklin Monaghan which will take the community into the 21st Century, marketing-wise.

During the last year, the Chamber of Commerce concentrated on increasing exposure of five target markets the region has to offer. They are snowmobiling, fishing, fall colours, summer vacations and special events.

Brown said that the success of several high profile events this last year paid large dividends for the region through vast exposure to high volume markets. The Bass 'N Tario professional fishing contest, the finals of which were held on the Kashagawigamog Lake chain, was taped to be televised on Global's Fishing Canada show, showcasing the region to millions of viewers. "All the initiatives in the last ten years were equivalent to that amount of showcasing," said Brown.

More valuable exposure came in the way of the TSN broadcast of last winter's Dog Sled Derby. The show was syndicated to U.S. and European networks offering a potential viewership of 20 million people.

The relentless work of the Chamber of Commerce Marketing Committee, he said, was also responsible for drawing a high number of tour companies into the region this autumn. "Anyone who has been looking around the last couple of months has seen numerous buses. They didn't come here by themselves without anyone phoning and faxing them and generally bugging and harassing them," Brown said.

As for future initiatives, just last week an agreement was reached by six area resorts for a joint marketing campaign which will be aimed at luring snowmobilers from Michigan and Ohio. The campaign will included purchasing a full page in the high profile publication Michigan Snowmobiler, "the most sought after snowmobiler publication in America," said Brown. "We are confidant that this venture will result in people from Michigan and Ohio being attracted to the Haliburton Highlands for snowmobiling."

"Joint efforts such as this type hasn't been done in the past but will be done in the future," Brown promised. "There will be no more I, it will be WE because the greater the mass we are able to bring together the more success we believe we are going to have."

Creative campaigns like these, he said, "will continue and we expect that our efforts will increase as time goes by."

Guest speaking at the annual meeting was D'arcy McKittrick a representative for the consulting firm Marshall Macklin Monaghan, which is presently formulating a marketing strategy plan to increase accessibility, publicity and awareness of the Highlands in general.

Here, There and Everywhere...

In the latest edition of Bulletin, the magazine of the Ontario Handweavers and Spinners, there's a story about Lochlin's Ted and Mimi Carson. Written by Blue Hawk Lake weaver Wendy Bateman, the article touches on all the qualities and talents which have made this couple so well respected and liked in the weaving and spinning community. The Carsons used to own Handcraft Wools but retired a few years ago so they could pursue their other interests such as travelling, Scottish dancing, the concert series, figure skating and of course, spending time with their grandchildren.

In small communities, the post office is an unofficial community centre, the place where you can get more news than in any letter. In the Highlands in particular, the post office is also the place where people pause to read the death notices that are on the counter or posted on the wall. The staff at the Haliburton Post Office would like to remind people that they can get free death notices from the funeral homes. They ask that people refrain from taking the notices from the post office.

The famous $2 dinner for seniors is back at Legion Branch 129 Haliburton. On Thursday, October 20, you can enjoy a delicious meal and then dance to the music of "the big spinner", Owen Burmania. Where else can you dance the fox trot and waltz? Come and have some fun with your friends. The election for the executive of the Seniors Club is at 5:30 p.m. and dinner is at 6 p.m.

Haliburton's volunteer firefighters are once again holding a Big Buck Contest during deer hunting season, November 7 to 19th. When you buy a ticket, you are eligible to win the 550/50 prize for the biggest buck shot. There are also draw tickets for a gun and free wrapping of your deer. Tickets are available from any firefighter or Haliburton Lumber and the Butcher Block.

Here are some of the events happening this week: Glamorgan council meets at 7 p.m. on Oct. 18; the Gooderham School's Fun Fair is from 4:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Oct. 20; county council meets at the Minden Community Centre on Oct. 19 at 10 a.m.; the Glamorgan Police Support Association is hosting a free child identification clinic at the municipal office on Oct. 22 from 10 a.m. till noon; the grand opening of the County Bowling Centre on Hwy 35 in Minden (next to Westside Jug City) is Oct. 21 at 11 a.m. through to Oct. 23 at 5 p.m.; the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School is holding its Honours and Awards Night on Oct. 22 at 7 p.m.; Haliburton television watchers will be introduced to CHTV at Kei's Restaurant on Oct. 22 at 6:30 p.m.; the Ladies Auxiliary of the Haliburton Royal Canadian Legion is holding a 50th anniversary and awards night on Oct. 22.

Site of Minden welcome signs unresolved

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed at Thursday night's meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden council.

Minden signs

The Minden and Area Business Association is hoping to draw more drive-by traffic into Minden by erecting two large signs on Highway 35 on the northern and southern borders of the village.

Association members Dale Merrill and Gary Bloor told council the association has already chosen sites for the large signs and received approval from the Ministry of Transportation for the locations.

While members of council said they were in favour of the idea, they had concerns with the proposed southern location.

The site is actually just outside the municipality's boundaries on the private property of Jack Brezina in Lutterworth.

Bloor said Brezina would be glad to have the sign on his land, based on the provision that it be removed if he decides at some point in the future to sell the property.

Reeve Bern Berry said he had some concerns about that proposal because of the costs that would be involved in removing the sign and setting it up somewhere else should the landowner choose to sell.

He also said the municipality cannot apply to the province to put up any roadside signs outside its borders.

Public works superintendent Clayton Cameron said Lutterworth has agreed to apply to put up the sign on Minden's behalf, but won't cover the $175 application fee.

Merrill and Bloor said the association is hoping Minden will pay the application charges for both signs as its contribution toward their installation.

The estimated total cost of the two intricately carved signs is about $10,800, said Merrill. That price is much lower than it really should be because of all the time and materials people plan to donate toward the project, he said.

The association has already received donations from local business, individuals and groups covering about a third of the projected cost of the signs, Merrill said.

Each of the proposed signs would be constructed of cedar and would stand on a base of wood and stone. The words "Welcome to Minden. Have a great stay" would be carved on the oval face of the signs.

"We wanted something that would be very eye-catching and impressive," said Merrill.

Berry told Bloor and Merrill council would likely pay the association's application fees, but would like to see them do a little more research.

MINDEN COUNCIL BRIEFS

He said they should find out how much time the association would have to put up the signs once they have received provincial approvals. He also recommended that they scout alternative locations for the southern sign.

Losing the trail

Public works superintendent Clayton Cameron told members of council the Nordic Trails Association has run into some major obstacles along the route it is hoping to open as a ski trail from the Minden fairground to Hart Lodge.

He said he doesn't think the association will be able to develop the trail in time to be used this coming season.

The proposed trail between Scotch Line Rd. East and Queen's Line Rd. would have to be re-routed around a series of six hills, he noted in a report to council.

"The big problem is that we have no idea where the concession actually is," he said. "It's a tough chunk of trail."

Before a trail can be opened up, the association will have to carry out a detailed development plan and further site inspections, he said.

"They're into more than what they ever expected to be," said Cameron.

OPP vs HHSS

Members of the Minden detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police will face off against Haliburton Highlands Secondary School's Redmen hockey team next month in a fund-raiser game to battle drug and alcohol abuse.

Council agreed to pay $112.35 to cover the costs of an hour and a half of arena time on November 19 for the game, which has been organized by the Haliburton County Community Action Group on Alcohol and Drugs.

The committee plans to charge an admission fee of $1 or $2. Most of the proceeds will be donated to the high school's chapter of Ontario Students Against Impaired Drivers. Some the funds will also go to help kids at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto who have been injured by drunk drivers.

Council also granted the committee permission to hang it Drug Awareness Week banner in Minden throughout November.

Local trades used

Orillia-based Michael Monteith Enterprises Ltd., the contractor in charge of Minden's municipal office expansion project, intends to use as many local workers as possible in the construction process, said Berry.

And while that may give local trades something to be happy about, Councillor Jeanne Anthon said rumors are circulating that the municipality didn't give area building firms a fair chance at winning the expansion contract.

She said the municipality "made every attempt" to so, but no local contractors responded.

The expansion project, which will be ready by next June, will add court facilities to the existing office, as well as upgraded electrical and plumbing systems, new windows and doors and an improved heating and cooling system.

The estimated cost of the work is $579,000, plus approximately $70,000 in engineering fees.

'No happy answer'

A Minden cottager wants the municipality to examine the possibility of establishing a sign by-law similar to the county's to prevent businesses from cluttering the roadways with advertising.

Warren Whelen of London, Ont. sent a letter to Berry and Haliburton County Warden Jim McMahon, complaining that a large number of signs advertising "Epsilon Satellite" have recently begun to pop up across the county. He said he has counted more than 15 of the signs on roads in Anson, Minden, Stanhope and Dysart.

Whelen says he fears that other merchants may take Epsilon's lead. He said he's concerned that large numbers of roadside signs will damage the natural scenery and might turn away visitors who come to this area from big cities to get away from "daily visual pollution."

While the county has a sign by-law that establishes the sizes and locations of signs that can be posted along its roadways, the municipality does not, said Berry.

Council referred Whelen's letter to its roads committee for further discussion.

"I think this is going to be something that needs a lot of research," Berry said. "...There's no happy answer to that. No matter what you do you're going to have someone mad at you."

Tennis anyone?

Few players have been putting Minden's new tennis courts to use, said instructor Jack Richardson.

"I don't think too many people know about it," he told members of council.

Richardson said he gave tennis lessons to about eight adults two days per week for five weeks throughout the summer.

He said the courts were also used fairly regularly by area school children, but that there is room for more players.

Richardson suggested that council publicize the courts and the community tennis lessons more in the spring to increase their usage next summer.

IAN WOOD - COUNCILLOR WARD 4

"I have given careful consideration in my decision to run for councillor in my area." says Ian Wood.
"Though never having been involved politically I feel my experience in dealing with people throughout my working career gives me an insight into the concerns of the taxpayer and how their dollar is being spent. My main objectives are roads and road maintenance, taxes, the environment and health care, specifically hospital beds, which was an issue when I first moved to Haliburton in 1989 and as yet is unresolved."
"It is important", says Mr. Wood "To have open lines of communication and input of all the people, both permanent and seasonal residents, who represent a large percentage of taxes collected in the area."
"I make no promises or guarantees" says Mr. Wood "other than to do my best as part of the team for the betterment of the community."
Mr. Wood was born and educated in Scotland. He holds a mechanical engineering degree. After moving to Canada in 1957 he worked as maintenance manager of two large companies in Montreal and Toronto. In 1989 he made Haliburton his permanent home. He was a volunteer driver with Home Support Services for two years. An ex-serviceman, he is retired and resides with his wife in West Guilford.

FISH FRENZY: Members of the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association and the Bronson Lake Hunt Club removed 2,500 rainbow trout last Saturday which they raised for redistribution throughout the region's lakes.

Fishermen restock lakes with 5,000 rainbow trout

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

With the Ministry of Natural Resources cutting back on the number of fish it stocks in local lakes, area fishermen have taken matters into their own hands.

The Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association and the Bronson Lake Hunt Club joined forces in a restocking program of their own. It involved the raising and relocation of 5,000 rainbow trout into 12 area lakes and rivers. Fisherman should see a noticeable increase in the rainbow trout catch after last weekend's unique restocking project of Haliburton County lakes and rivers.

Organized by Scott Vasey, the Bronson Lake Hunt Club laid the foundations for the program in 1987 during an experimental process. After receiving permission for a licensed hatchery from the MNR, club members began raising the fish last spring in 15 foot cubed tanks on Bronson Lake and on Blue Lake, which is part of Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve Both lakes are privately owned.

Vasey said the motivation behind the program, the first of its kind in the area ever performed by residents, was "the MNR's decreasing stock program and the fact that they are stocking with smaller fish."

The eight-month old, 12 to 15 inch trouts are "ready for immediate catch," Vasey said, and are large enough that "predation shouldn't hit them hard. They will go into the waters as immediate predators and they are a pretty keepable size."

He said that within a year or two the trout should reach weights of anywhere between 4 lbs to 10 lbs.

"The whole idea is for the Haliburton public to catch them. We are just enhancing what's already there but you should see an immediate" increase in the rainbow trout population.

Scott's brother Ted Vasey said "raising the fish and watching them grow has been a lot of fun for us and the kids." Plus, he added, "it helps out the MNR, too."

Five thousand fish were trucked to 12 lakes and rivers on Saturday with roughly 400 being placed per body of water: Cedar Lake in Lutterworth, Minden Lake and Gull River in Minden, Kabakwa Lake in Stanhope, Buckskin Lake, Little Esson Lake and Little Glamor Lake in Monmouth, Bean Pole Lake and Coburn Lake in Eyre, Drag Lake in Dysart et al, and Minnicock and Cardiff Lakes.

The fish were originaly purchased from Pure Springs Trout Farm. They were fed thoughout the summer by the 14 members of the Bronson Lake Hunt Club and then sold at cost, said Vasey, to the Outdoors Association for the restocking project.

number of them but today we have none."

Kaufmann also pointed out the impact the potential shut down has had on the Ontario Federation of Snowmobilers Club (OFSC). "I've had people saying to me that they won't buy a permit until they know the trails will be open and it's a user-pay system so if they don't buy permits then the OFSC doesn't have the money to prepare the trails so they fall apart," Kaufmann said.

Kennisis Lake Marina also got 166 signatures on a petition calling for the reinstatement of the Managed Forest Tax Rebate program. It has been sent to Queen's Park.

The HFOA partially based its deadline extension on having received written promises from both the Liberal and Conservative provincial parties to negotiate a fairer tax system of private forest lands after the upcoming election.

EDITORIAL

Curiouser & curiouser

When Alice fell into the rabbit's hole, she didn't land in Wonderland – she dropped into a meeting of the Acting Health Services Board.

Consider this: the board was formed to implement the Ministry of Health's plans for Haliburton County. Last December, the Ministry said the board must achieve four main goals:

- 30 long-term care beds had to be built onto the Haliburton Hospital
- acute care beds in Haliburton and Minden had to be consolidated
- emergency facilities had to be provided in both Minden and Haliburton
- all of this has to be done within a capital budget of $10.6-million

Two weeks ago there was a motion to consolidate the acute care beds in Haliburton. Ergo, according to the Ministry's rules, emergency facilities would be built in Minden. But the motion was defeated in a 7-7 vote.

Last Wednesday, two people who spoke against the above motion proposed one of their own. Bev MacDuff and Ted Wilkes said the beds should be consolidated in Haliburton and emergency facilities must be provided in Minden. Perhaps MacDuff and Wilkes can explain why their motion is different in its intent than the first one. It's hard for anyone else to. (MacDuff says her motion opens the doors of negotiation, ignoring the fact that the board's raison d'etre has always been to negotiate what's best for the county given December's parametres.)

So on Wednesday night, the seven members who originally voted to consolidate the beds in Haliburton were in a Catch 22 situation. MacDuff's motion included having five to seven stabilization beds in the Minden project and emergency care should be 24-hours a day. There was no meaningful discussion on whether five was the right number of stabilization beds or 50. Indeed, the discussion rather fizzled when they learned even five beds were not affordable. There was no cost benefit or service analysis of 24-hour emergency care. But even though the "original seven" had problems with the second and third part of MacDuff's motion, it was clear that MacDuff and Wilkes would vote for it. With these two votes, the "original seven" would achieve their goal of getting the board to support consolidating beds in Haliburton. They voted for the motion in spite of what it said. (Sincere applause goes to Minden's Paul Heffer. He voted against the motion but when it came time for him to exercise Gord Monk's proxy vote, he voted in favour of it, saying he believed that's what Mr. Monk, a Minden resident, would have done. It was a noble act.)

But here are two problems with the second motion compared to the first: The Ministry can say "we like the part about consolidation but we can't approve all the other parts." Since the motion was voted on as a whole, this leaves it open for some board members to say "we voted on the motion as a whole so that means the whole motion is defeated, including the part about consolidation." Which takes us back to the need for the original motion.

The other problem is that the determining factor is cost – what can be done with $10.6-million? What if seven stabilization beds means we can only afford 25 long-term care beds? What if the people of Minden would forego emergency services from midnight until 6 a.m. if it meant they could have a walk-in clinic in the summer? Such questions are for the communities to answer.

Every board member has ideas about what services need to be provided. Each of them, in time, will be able to voice those opinions. They'll debate issues, one by one. They'll base decisions on information that will be made available as each topic arises. Due process will be followed. Instead of throwing hundreds of pieces of a puzzle on the table all at once as MacDuff did, the board has to be a pyramid maker. You start with the decisions on the bottom and work your way up, one piece at a time. M.P.

Acute care beds merger a must for county

To the Editor
from our Readers

The following letter was sent to the Ministry of Health's Annabel Garland, District Manager, Institutional Health Division

Dear Ms. Garland:

We are writing with regard to the proposed consolidation of acute care beds in the County of Haliburton. As you know, this issue has been under consideration by the Health Services Board.

We wish to express our support for the concept of consolidation for acute care beds in one geographic location in Haliburton County. The need to focus on the next stage of implementation necessitates that this question should be resolved as soon as possible. We believe that there are several advantages to consolidation which will enhance patient care, the range of services available to our community and, at the same time, lead to cost efficiencies. At the present time, it is exceedingly difficult to provide even a basic level of acute care (given the changes in this area of medical practice over the last two decades) from two small hospitals which total only 19 beds between them.

Consolidation of acute care in one location, especially of it were physically aligned with long-term care beds, would create a critical mass of sufficient institutional size that several aspects of acute care would be improved and expanded as a result of the increased staff, technical resources and economics of scale.

We would like to mention just a few of the areas which would immediately benefit:

a) Complex care patients, especially difficult or unstable cardiology problems. Those patients even when ultimately transferred to a larger centre, require considerable nursing staff and equipment resources. With a larger nursing staff, it would be easier to cover increased staffing needs in critical areas. In a small setting, the demand for this type of increased nursing care may vary from zero patients to three or four, 48 hours later. The same ebb and flow demands on technical support (cardiac monitors, IV infusion pumps and BP monitors) can also be met with greater ease in a consolidated hospital with a larger pool of resources. An important side benefit in this area is that there would be a decrease in stress and burn out for nursing personnel who are attempting to cover difficult and complex patients. With restrictions in bed availability in larger centres (particularly CCU beds) it is not always possible to transfer these patients out within 12 or 24 hours and a larger acute care facility in this county would be much better suited to provide staff and equipment for these patients with life-threatening illness.

b)Lab facilities. At the present time, neither hospital has any in-house lab facilities. Reliance on the local private lab for urgent tests is costly and does not provide a broad range of tests for acute care (no cardiac enzymes for example). The lab work sent out to our parent hospital by courier is subject to a turn around time which varies from 24 to 60 hours. In a consolidated facility some basic lab services on site could be cost effective.

c)Other professional services. A consolidated institution would have sufficient size to support an expanded physiotherapy department, (at present, no physio is available in Minden) plus it would be possible to develop other rehabilitation services such as occupational and speech therapy. A broader range of patients such as post-stroke, palliative care and post-operative patients could be accommodated in the community. Visiting consulting services in areas such as geriatrics and psychiatry might be more easily accommodated in a single larger facility.

d)Diagnostic imaging. At present we support two small and limited diagnostic imaging departments. A consolidated acute care hospital would offer better technical resources and it would be possible to expand the scope of service to include more contrast studies for example. An expanded servive could support an on-site radiologist for a portion of the week. More flexibility of call back coverage and less stress for the technologist would also result.

e)Other economics of scale available in a larger facility would allow for patient and visitor services (cafeteria, rentals etc.) which would have a positive impact on revenue.

f)There has been considerable concern raised in both communities about the need for each town to have a hospital. We do not see this as an argument supported by a consideration of quality of patient care. It certainly can not be justified on the basis of cost efficiency.

g)We feel both communities will be better served by one acute care facility staffed and equipped to meet the needs of both communities.

We have become increasingly concerned with the apparent stalemate over this issue at the Health Services Board. We wholeheartedly support the chair, Mr. Stuart Baker, and his efforts to bring this to some resolution. However, recent events make it appear that the Board is so polarized geographically that it may not be possible to proceed with this important first step in restructuring institutional health care in our county.

We respectfully suggest that the time has come for the Ministry of Health resolve the issue.

Yours Sincerely,

Robert H. Heyes M.D., Christina A. Stephenson M.D., Stephen A. Ferracuti M.D., Harry F. Good M.D., Karl R. Hartwick M.D., Norman E. Bottum M.D., Peter Toth M.D., Kristy L. Gammon M.D.

East Haliburton being neglected

To the Editor:

During the past few months there have been petitions and letters requesting the government of Ontario to upgrade the transmitters for TVOntario.

Why should three percent of the people who do not receive the reception of this excellent station have to use their tax dollar for the 97 percent who do?

The provincial government can waste money having conventions in hotels and conference halls around the province when they have an excellent building for such meetings in Toronto.

According to Anne Swarbrick, Minister of Culture, Tourism and Recreation, updating the system is a substantial one-time capital expense and a long-term financial commitment. Why could this area of only three percent not have been considered in the original programming?

The eastern part of Haliburton County has always been neglected in county affairs; even Nila Reynolds overlooked it in her but fortunately this was corrected a few years later when she wrote, "This Laughing Pilgrimage".

I do hope something can be done about this problem in the very near future.

Margaret Finlay,
Tory Hill

The importance of being earnest

ANNECDOTES

ANNE CREELMAN

THE OTHER DAY, my daughter Siobhan received a letter from a friend to whom she had sent a brief note. Now I must tell you, Siobhan is only four and her short note consisted of the friend's name written on an envelope and was signed "From Siobhan" in her own dear printing. The note was delivered and within a few days, Siobhan received a reply letter in the mail. This was a real card sent via Canada Post to Miss Siobhan Creelman. It had a stamp and everything. I read the letter to her and I wish you could have seen her face. She was absolutely delighted. She kept saying, "She sent it to ME and I'm going to keep it forever!". Well I have to tell you, it certainly got me thinking.

This was a real card sent via Canada Post to Miss Siobhan Creelman. It had a stamp and everything...

It made me think of all the times I received a letter from a long lost friend and the surprise and joy I felt that I was hearing from them again after such a long time. I thought of all of the lovely thank you notes I have been sent and how the senders probably were far too busy but took the time to send them anyway. It made me think of the lost art of letter writing.

I used to be much better at writing letters, back in high school when the only thing I had to report was a bad math mark and what-girl-was-seeing-which-boy that week. I would merrily jot off letters to friends in New Brunswick, Toronto and England with a flourish and anxiously await a reply which usually came in short order. As I grew older and my life got a little more hectic with college and part-time jobs and boyfriends, my letter writing lessened. I was pretty prompt with thank you cards for wedding and baby gifts but not much else in between. I was finding that the more things I got involved in, the less time I had for writing. When Siobhan showed me how much a letter can mean, I realized I had better change my ways.

How many times do we read about something or someone whom we feel are making a difference and yet we never let them know? Or all of the times we reason that, although we feel strongly about a cause, even if we write a letter it won't have an effect on the outcome? Or the little things that people do that cause you to have a lighter step or a secret smile and yet we often forget to say thanks.

I'm not saying I am Miss Manners and always write promptly. In fact, I am likely one of the worst offenders at leaving things unsaid or in this case, unwritten. I will probably hear from all of the people to whom I have forgotten to send a card, letter or note for any deed, present or donation. Be that as it may, I am going to try to be a better correspondent in the future. If I feel strongly about a government issue, I am going to write a letter. If there is a school board policy I don't understand or feel should be addressed, I'm going to write a letter. If a person does a good job at even a small task, I'm going to write a letter, and so on and so forth. These may seem like small, even petty points and certainly not worth the trouble, but I'm beginning to see that most things are worth a little trouble. The time it takes to write a letter is really inconsequential compared to the impact it may have on its receiver. And even if you don't get a response to a letter, a least you'll know you stated your case or feelings, voiced an opinion or even just said hello and can feel good knowing that.

Well you have probably guessed by now that I must go and put pen to paper to any number of people to whom I should have written long ago. I think I'll start at the top and work my way down. Now, is it "Right Honourable Mr. Prime Minister" or will "Dear Jean" suffice?

Pic of the Past

The staff at the Haliburton County Echo might know a lot about Haliburton County, but our knowledge about the Echo itself is sometimes a bit scant. That's why we appreciate seeing this photo by Richard Austin of Haliburton. He took the picture of the old Echo building in the early seventies, when it used to be on the main street of Haliburton, where the Old Country House is today. Those were the days when the late Creighton Feir ran the presses which were inside the building. Today we're at the corner of York and Maple Streets, about a block away, and the paper is printed in Bracebridge.We thank Mr. Austin for sharing the photo with us.

Value is in the eye of the beholder

Art and Me

by Marion J. Hare

ECONOMIC VALUE and artistic worth are like oil and water – they just don't mix. Yet artists who wish to sell the product of their creativity must somehow combine the two.

Over the years I have chatted with artists and artisans about their methods of finding a marketable price for their works. In this past week I have talked with a couple of local artists as well.

It seems that wherever they are located, metropolitan area or small town, international centre or outlying hamlet, the reasoning is the same. The main factors are cost of materials plus whatever the market dictates.

Added value can be an established reputation. The most certain way to do that is for the artist to die!!!! Posthumous sales often bring skyrocketing prices for artists who could barely make a living when alive. What irony!

In reading the above, does it not become obvious that the essential ingredient, the artist's time, is missing in the equation? No artist could sensibly log the hours spent on any work and use that as a criterion for pricing; few artists would even try for one might find that the hourly wage was so far below the minimum as to seriously wonder if the effort is justified by the result. Isn't that shocking!

With the exception of a few artists who have managed to latch on to a popular trend, rare is the case of an artist who receives just remuneration for the hours spent using their artistic talent and unique skill.

This struck me most forcibly a couple of weeks ago when attending the October Flea Market at the Haliburton Legion Hall. I bought several ornaments, one for each of our grandchildren to put on their Christmas trees. The ornaments - adorable tiny stuffed bunnies so creatively designed and carefully executed. (How could I resist with a last name like ours!!!)

Anyone who sews knows that tiny means painstaking, intricate work. Yet each of these was priced at only $3.00. No way could that cover time and materials at even half the minimum wage. The price was obviously set by what was perceived to be customer value judgment not intrinsic worth.

How sad. But even more disconcerting is the fact that often the resale of a work will have a much higher price tag. This has become so prevalent in the United States that artists are now trying to have legislation passed that will allow them to have a percentage of any resale within their own lifetime.

What primary market forces dictate the price of original works of art? Obviously demand. This should be a barometer of the artistic talent evident in the piece but far more often it is the result of media popularity.

Name recognition is key. Galleries have the obligation to promote the artists in their "stable." That can lead to popularity and prices soar. Often also, painters and sculptors permit reproductions to be made from the original work. This can increase demand for other originals, thus upping the price.

Location can also be a factor. Prices for original works of art typically can be priced higher in metropolitan centers. Having exhibited in some well-known gallery lends prestige. These are only a few of the factors that influence the price that an artist can set.

How then can any casual buyer who may only buy a few pieces in a lifetime ever know if the price asked is fair? The question has little meaning for each work is unique. The only answer is the trite one. If you are eager for a particular work and you consider it in your price range then for you the price is right.

When my husband and I find a work we wish we could own and to which our pocket book will agree we then go away and think about it for a few days. Some works continue to haunt. Such ones we know we would enjoy living with. Then the price is right!

How can a craft which took hours to make be sold for only $3?

Leaving cottage friends behind

DOWN OUR ROAD

SHARON LYNCH

BUT MOM, I WANT TO TAKE them home." These words were stated with strong emotion, almost pleading their urgency. Then, just in case Mom did not get the full message, the word "please" was added in a long drawn-out wail that threatened to turn tearful. Mom stiffened her back slightly and remained calmly, clearly firm.

"Now Sadie," she began. "We've already talked about this - a lot. The animal and insect friends you make at the cottage have to stay at the cottage. It's their home." Here Sadie lowered her head, knowing she had lost the battle. She had hoped that just this once her mother would give in, relent under pressure. In her six year- old hands rested a glass jar containing autumn leaves, pieces of grass, a small and perfect twig and two millipedes named Sam and Sara. Sadie liked names that started with 's'.

Amazingly the millipedes had lived in the jar for several weeks. Every weekend Sarah changed their jar, restocking it with fresh food and habitat. But first Sam and Sara would crawl along her arm and over her knees like a gentle summer breeze. Their tiny red legs moved in a wave across her skin, stopping only when she upended them, at which time they curled immediately into perfect protective circles.

Sadie was convinced they were as fond of her as she of them and she wanted to take them home to the city and show them off. Jeffrey, the obnoxious little boy who lived next door, refused to believe the millipedes existed. He said girls were too afraid of bugs to ever have them for pets. What did he know, thought Sadie. Now she'd never have the chance to show him; or her teacher, or her best friend Margaret. Margaret believed her, which was why she was a best friend.

Knowing that Sara and Sam would be happier in the natural world, instead of stuck in a jar in the city, did not take away her sadness at losing them. Silently she unscrewed the lid, preparing to bid them a final goodbye. Then she felt a tap on her shoulder. It was her father with his camera.

"Why don't we take a picture before you let them go, Sadie? I'm sure your friends, especially Margaret, would like to see it." Good old dad, thought Sadie. Now she would at least be able to prove Sam and Sara existed.

She reached down into the jar's wide mouth until her hand came in contact with the cool armoured surface of one of the millipedes. The other was close by. Sadie withdrew a small fist, then opened it to display two curled up insects that looked like poker chips resting in the palm of her hand. She hoped they would uncurl for the camera so she and her father waited a few minutes.

The result of their patience was the sight of two millipedes moving in single file across Sadie's forearm while her own youthful face beamed in the background. Luckily her father had a camera that could take action shots. Wait until that rude boy next door saw this, she thought.

Then it was time to say goodbye to Sam and Sara. She bent down on her knees, feeling the cushioning leaves through her jeans. Did millipedes care if the leaves were green or not, Sadie silently wondered. They were back in curls again, startled by the movement of her hand. She placed them side by side on the mossy surface of an old stump, not far from the cottage's back door. They looked like a pair of her mother's earrings, except they were the wrong colour.

"Dad, do you think I'll see them again next year?" she asked, still looking for some hope that this was not good bye forever. Her dad waited a minute before answering. Then he told her that there was no way he could answer that question since millipedes looked a lot alike and it would be hard to recognize Sara and Sam. He also pointed out that they probably had short memories and so might not recognize her either.

Sadie saw the logic in what he said. Good old dad, she thought. He always managed to say something that made her feel better. But she knew she would recognize Sara and Sam next year, no matter how many other millipedes turned up. So instead of saying goodbye, she whispered a silent, " So long," and walked back inside with her dad.

Field Hockey team wins Kawartha tourney berth

Haliburton high school's senior girls field hockey team have earned a berth in the Kawartha Championship Tournament next Tuesday as a result of two impressive victories in Peterborough on Tuesday, Oct. 11.

In the first game, Haliburton faced the undefeated first-place team from P.C.V.S. After some initial strong play by the Haliburton defense, the forwards got on a roll and Jess Wallace was able to finish off an aggressive play with a go-ahead goal. In the second half Haliburton continued a steady offensive attack, resulting in the insurance goal from Jody Reid. The defense continued to hold back the frustrated Peterborough forwards. This was an impressive game by the Haliburton squad and a well-earned 2-0 victory.

In their second game, the Seniors faced the last-place team from Cobourg, still needing another win to insure entry into the finals. It was obvious that the first game had given the Haliburton girls the confidence they needed to score goals. Haliburton's offense finally started to make a habit of putting the ball into the net and the final total was two more goals for Jess Wallace, two for Stacey Bunn and one more for Jody Reid. Well-deserved assists went to Carol Mowat, Dawn Mole, Jenn Dunford, Dionna Warburton, Amanda Duncombe and Dayle Kellestine. The final score of 5-0 gave Mandy Harrison her fifth shutout in six league games. These two victories assure them of at least a second-place finish in the seven-team pool. The team is working well and looking forward to Kawartha.

The Haliburton Juniors finished their league play with a scoreless draw against Crestwood Juniors. The single point pulled them into a third-place tie with Trinity in the six-team Junior league and guaranteed their entry into the Kawartha finals on Oct. 20.

PeeWee Huskies take pair

The Haliburton OMHA PeeWee Huskies have established themselves as the early season favourite in their league. After defeating Fenelon Falls 6-1 in the season opener last week they went on to crush Bobcaygeon 12 - 0 and stagger Woodville 6 - 1 this week.

Coach Bob Johnston and his assistants Paul Morissette, Brian Mulholland and Ted Glendinning have the squad in good form with plenty of practice time and exhibition games behind them already.

On Tuesday in Haliburton it was not much of a contest. The Huskies dominated firing two goals in the first period, four in the second and closing with six in the third. The scoring was well spread around with Dan Koz, Greg Luck and Greg Forgrave all notching a deuce. Singles went to Bobby Hebert, Nic Cochrane, Chris Moynes, Mike Morissette, Allan Pugh and Cole Glendinning. Pugh, Morissette and Cochrane added a pair of assists each while Devon Dart, Blayne Saunders, Koz, Luck, Moynes and Glendinning had one apiece.

On Friday night in Woodville the competition was better but still not up to the Huskies' standard. Greg Forgrave, with assists from Mike Morissette and Devon Dart gave Haliburton a first period lead. In the second period Dan Koz slammed one home with Allan Pugh assisting and Chris Moynes maintained his goal-a-game pace on a big individual effort. In the third period the Huskies fired three, Blayne Saunders from Matt Reid, defenceman Reid with his first of the season on an ice long rush and Pugh from Morissette and Dart, before Woodville scored their only goal late in the game.

In the Haliburton end defenceman Jamie Johnston gave his support to goalies Brian Mulholland and Adam Wilson, keeping the opposition to only one goal in two games.

Novice As battle to draw

I love October with the suspense of the World Series, the flying fury of the NHL starting up; the gorgeous weather and Huskie hockey back in your face. (Thank God for the latter two!)

Sunday the Fenelon Falls Falcons hit the pond in Haliburton, ready to duke it out with the Huskie Novice A squad. Just like last week, the blue and white started strongly, taking an early two-goal lead on a pair from Joel Cooper with Jamie Sala and Matt Manary picking up assists. Haliburton fans thought their boys had taken a strangle hold on Fenelon when Jason Chambers banged one in on the Fenelon door step, only to have it called back (two skates in the crease). The Huskies seemed to be in control when injury struck, losing defenseman Norm Smith to a badly bruised knee while blocking a shot. The momentum swung the other way and with 14 seconds left in the first period Fenelon got on the board, bringing the orange and white fans to their feet.

Early in the second period Joel Cooper nailed the hat trick on a nice feed from Matt Manary, putting the Huskies up 3-1. The Falcons wouldn't say uncle and kept plugging away, netting two more to tie up the contest before the end of the period.

In the third, the Huskies dug deep and took a 5-3 lead on goals from Jamie Sala and Ross Gerry with Brandon Bowman drawing an assist. But once again the boys from canal country stormed back, applying pressure and closing to within one at the eight-minute mark and tying it up with three minutes left in the game.

Neither team could muster up the go-ahead goal and the game ended in a 5-5 draw. Good game guys and good luck on your road game in Little Britain on Sunday, Oct. 23.

Football Juniors, Seniors shoot down Falcons

Wins this week against LCVI, Weldon would make Redmen teams league champions

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Both Haliburton Highlands Secondary School football teams are in the position this week to become Kawartha West champions.

The junior and senior Redmen beat their Fenelon Falls opponents on Friday and have two final games each at home this week. The teams face LCVI this afternoon and I.E. Weldon on Friday.

If the juniors and seniors can keep their undefeated streaks alive, they will automatically be named champs in Kawartha West. If they lose either of their matches, they will have to try for the title in a play-off round next week.

The senior Redmen beat Fenelon 18-6 on Friday, surrendering the first touchdown to be scored against them in four games this season.

That play came on a controversial penalty call with only 30 seconds remaining in the game, said coach Gary Brohman.

"We got a penalty for tackling high," he said. "We felt the penalty was unjust, but it gave them a 30-yard gain and took them to our 12-yard line."

The Falcons' quarterback was able to throw the ball in for the six points, but the team missed the convert.

Aside from this play, Brohman said the Redmen were in control of the action throughout the game.

Mark Morissette made a key interception on Fenelon's first rush, putting Haliburton in control of the ball and in position for its first touchdown. Quarterback Kevin Morissette scored on an option play from about nine yards out.

The Redmen were in scoring position once more in the quarter, but Morissette gave an interception away to nullify the play, said coach Brohman.

In the second quarter, Peter Brohman scored the team's second TD on an off-tackle play.

The Redmen defense played well for the remainder of the half to keep Fenelon off the scoreboard, said the coach.

The third quarter was scoreless and Mark Morissette took an eight-yard pass into the end zone in the fourth for the team's final TD.

"Mark had two big interceptions," said coach Brohman. "He played really an outstanding game from a defensive point of view."

The team missed all three convert attempts on its touchdowns.

Juniors

What started out as a battle for the Junior Redmen turned into 33-0 blow out over the Falcons.

Runningback Mike Bradley scored a touchdown early in the first quarter for the Redmen, but the Fenelon defense squad soon keyed in on him and shut down the team's scoring chances.

At the same time, the Falcons showed some offense of their own.

In the second quarter with the score still holding at 7-0 for the Redmen, the Fenelon team was threatening on Haliburton's three-yard line. It took some heavy defense to keep them out of the end zone, said coach Griffith.

When the Redmen regained possession, Bradley took a hand-off down the field for 107 yards and the longest carry of his record-breaking season.

"That kind of deflated the Falcons after that," said coach Griffith.

Bradley put another seven points on the board for his team later in the quarter to bring the score to 20-0 at the end of the half.

In the third quarter, quarterback George Godfrey connected with a 35-yard pass to Bill Duvell to raise the score.

The team has been working on its throwing game in practice. Godfrey has a good, strong arm, but it has been tough for his receivers to get a hold of his passes because they are coming at them so hard and fast.

"The senior coaches are just drooling over him," said coach Griffith. "They can't wait until he comes up."

Bradley scored his fourth TD of the game in the third, bringing his run tally for the game to 255 yards.

The young runningback is well on his way to smashing a couple more school records, said coach Griffith. He is less than 20 yards off Peter Brohman's junior running record of 1,127 yards in six games and he still has two more regular season matches to go.

As well, he is very close to beating Andy Bacon's 1991 record of 124 points in the regular season. Bradley, who has scored 108 points for the Redmen, is only 16 points away from matching that record. Three touchdowns would put him over the top.

"Sixteen (points)," said coach Griffith. "He can do that in one quarter."

In the scoreless fourth quarter, the junior coaches played a lot of rookies to give them some game experience.

Among the notable performers, said coach Griffith, were Grade 9 Ian Clements, who caught a 17-yard pass, and Grade 9 Shane Parks, who was throwing his body into just about every Falcon player he could hit.

"Pound for pound he hits the hardest of anyone on the team," said coach Griffith. "He's pretty small, but he's all heart. He really impressed us in that game."

This week's Pick of the Pack: Centre Jesse Johnson for digging in for the puck and using his winger to score team points.

Next home game is Saturday, Oct. 22 at 11a.m. against Manvers. The Novice C bake sale will run at the arena on the same day from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Relentless Atoms take first game11-1

Welcome to the Haliburton O.M.H.A. Atoms, coached by Rick Wood with Trainer Steve Cooper and Manager Paul Wilson. The O.M.H.A. Atoms are a great bunch of boys who are looking forward to an exciting and challenging year. Starting the team roster is Goal Tender Andrew Sachs, Defensemen Chris Petrow, Shane Campbell, Alex Judge and Adam Henry. Forward lines consist of Jamie Luck, Chris Nimigon, Jeff Wilson, Scot Curry, Warren Cooper and Ryan Wood.

The Atom's first game was Sept. 23 when they hosted the Bancroft Jets. Haliburton was relentless and won the game 11 to 1.

In game two on Sept. 28 the Atoms travelled to Huntsville, squeaking by with a see-saw score of 6-5. When Huntsville came to Haliburton for a re-match on October 1, Haliburton wasn't about to let Huntsville go home in a victorious mood. The final score was 6-4 for Haliburton.

If the exhibition season started out sell for the Huskies, then success seemed more than possible in the league season. On Oct. 7, the Huskies took on Woodville in the first game of the regular league season. The Atoms celebrated their 10-2 win all the way home.

The huskies returned to Woodville on Oct. 14. This time Woodville fought back, but the Huskies were able to win their first five games of the season, this time with a score of 8-5.

And now for the highlights of the most recent game!

Bracebridge arrived in Haliburton on Oct. 16, ready for a competitive game of hockey. And that is what they found. The action was ended to end for most of the first period, remaining scoreless until Jeff Wilson found the mark assisted by Chris Nimigon. Jamie Luck opened the scoring in the 2nd period assisted by Chris Nimigon and Jeff Wilson. then Bracebridge garnered one for their side. Jeff Wilson passed the puck up to Jamie Luck who slipped it in the net before the Bracebridge goalie knew what was going on. Midway through this period, Bracebridge added one more by J. Davis unassisted. Jamie Luck scored one more time on a nice passing play by Jeff Wilson, to earn himself a "hat trick". Scot Curry added another to the board for Haliburton, on a slick passing play from Luck to Wilson to Curry. Hugh Dunlop out manoeuvred the Haliburton goalie to add another for Bracebridge. Then Jeff Wilson, assisted by Scot Curry scored in the last 53 seconds. Bracebridge wasn't finished, they poured it on and slipped one in past our goalie in the last 45 seconds. Sachs was ready, no way was he going to let Bracebridge score again and held steadfast blocking everything that came his way. Alex Judge, Chris Petrow and Adam Henry played a solid, defensive game. It all works together to make a winning combination. Haliburton 6, Bracebridge 4.

The Haliburton O.M.H.A. Atoms play on the following Friday nights at 7 p.m. at the Dysart Arena. Haliburton vs. Beaverton, October 21, 1994 at 7 p.m.; Haliburton vs. Fenelon Falls, October 28, 1994 at 7 p.m.; Haliburton vs. Beaverton, November 4, 1994 at 7 p.m.

Novice C Huskies win one, lose one

The Haliburton Huskies Novice C team (a.k.a. the Flying Frewings) played two great games of hockey on the weekend.

In the Ops game, breakaway action early in the first by Jesse Johnson started the Haliburton assault on the Ops net. Excellent scoring opportunities also came from Kyle Espie, Calvin Roswell, Joel Johnson, Adam Trueman, Trevour Trantau,Travis Burke and Josh Flick, in an exciting end-to-end rush. The fans couldn't believe the score was still 0-0 at the end of the second period.

At the 7:54 mark of the third, the hard-working Huskies finally hit pay dirt. Joel, assisted by Calvin, got the Huskies on the score board. Two minutes later on a beatiful pass from Jesse, Kyle slid one by the Flames' goaltender. Calvin netted the third and final goal on a pass from Joel.

Strong defense by Travis Burke, Justin Abbs, Josh Fick, Nick Chumbley and goalie Jeff McKenna gave Haliburton its first shut-out of the season.

On Sunday the team travelled to an early game in Fenelon Falls. The Fenelon team and the Huskies played well. Fenelon came out on top this time with a 6-3 win. Game points for Haliburton went to Kyle, Jesse, Joel, Adam and Calvin.

This week's Pick of the Pack: Centre Jesse Johnson for digging in for the puck and using his winger to score team points.

Next home game is Saturday, Oct. 22 at 11a.m. against Manvers. The Novice C bake sale will run at the arena on the same day from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

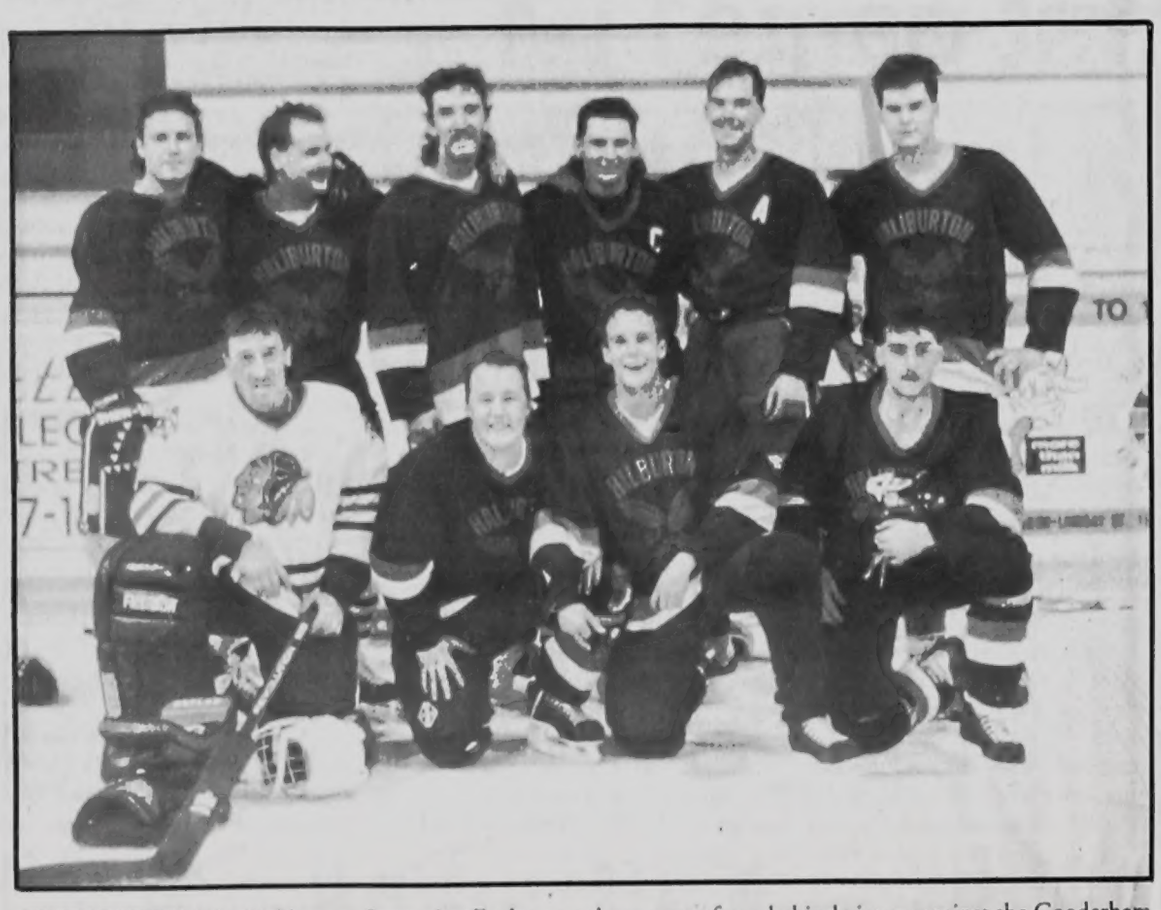
WE WON: The Minden Rangers waltzed to a victory against the team of Yake and Yake in the Division A finals at the Men's Hockey Tournament in Haliburton last Saturday..



FLYING HIGH: The Haliburton Screaming Eagles soared to a come-from-behind victory against the Gooderham Imperialsin the Division B finals of the men's tournament

Tourney attracts talent

The Haliburton Men's Hockey League's first organized tournament was played Saturday before a small but boisterous group of fans who were treated to a display of the high calibre of skill the region has to offer.

Oranizer and league president Steve Smith said he was satisfied with the turn-out but even more impressed with the strong quality of hockey played.

"It's really surprising how much talent there is in the area and the whole idea for the tournament is to show to the community that we do have good teams around here," Smith said.

The Haliburton Highlands Secondary School team, the Redmen, competed in the tournament and proved they were worthy competition for the men's teams, splitting their games with a loss and a win.

"We knew they were pretty good but we didn't know how good," said Smith.

The all-day tournament included teams from Minden, Gooderham and Haliburton, which were divided into two divisions. The Minden Rangers won the A division manhandling the team of Yake and Yake and picking up $500 while the Haliburton Screaming Eagle took home $375 with an exciting, come-from-behind win over the Gooderham Imperials for the division B battle.

Smith is hopeful that the tournament, which was a crisp, fast-paced, clean display of the game, will be an annual event.

Murphy's Law brings down Rockets

by SUE CLARKSON
Wilberforce Minor Hockey

Murphy's Law was very much in evidence Friday night as the Wilberforce Atom Rockets played their season opener. Not only did we have a few players out due to illness and only five players and the goalie ready to play, but the goalie's glove broke part way through the game. Chris Alden was the lone scorer for Wilberforce in this game with the assist going to Sean Passaretti. This was a tough first game for the Atoms, who lost 8 to 1 to Haliburton. We are proud of their determination. Imagine playing a whole game without a rest. No lack of ice time for this group. It was the first time most of these guys had been on the ice since the end of March.

Saturday's game in Woodville was a much better showing. We gained a few extra players so a well deserved bench break was allowed during this game. Wilberforce beat Woodville 9 to 2. Chris Alden scored seven goals and had one assist, Jason Woodcox and Jeremy Hufman each scored one and assisted one, Sean Passaretti racked up four assists while Kenny Mott snared two assists. These players couldn't have done it without the help of Brandon Logan who was brought up from the Novice team to help out. He did an outstanding job, as well as Tom Bates on defense and Billy Hunter between the pipes.

We look forward to our game next Friday night in Fenelon and Hope Ben DeCarlo is feeling well enough to join us. Get better soon Ben!

The people and/or companies that sponsored between two and five of our new jerseys are Schwandt Aggregate, L. Manary Sawmill, Wilberforce I.G.A., Chipmunk Junction Gas Station, K & T Huffman and the 93/94 Bantams. Our warmest thanks to you all for helping to make these new shirts possible. That's all this week from Wilberforce Minor Hockey.

Husky Novice Bs net Monarchs

The Haliburton Husky Novice Bs made it two in a row this past Saturday when they travelled to Minden and defeated the home-town Monarchs 7-2 due in part to solid defensive play, tenacious forechecking and a four-goal performance by Dustin Prindiville.

Haliburton opened the scoring at 4:01 of the first period when Dustin Prindiville banged home a rebound of an Andy Dawson wrist-shot. The score remained that way until almost the end of the second period as Haliburton's Jeremy Moynes and Minden's Ryan Cole stopped everyone that they faced.

As the period was wearing down however, it was becoming more and more apparent that the Huskies defence of Adam Hutson, Don Craig, Jeremy Miscio, Daniel Jung and Adrian Winn were allowing the Monarchs fewer and fewer scoring opportunities while their teammates on forward were getting more chances. Just before the period ended, this trend resulted in Haliburton's second goal when Nick Judge notched his third goal of the young season on a goal-mouth scramble. The assist went to Mathew Roberts.

As the third period opened, the Husky Bs continued to put on the pressure and at 4:25 were rewarded for their efforts when Andy Dawson fed Joshua Brown at the side of Monarchs net, and Brown in turn fed a wide open Prindiville at the far post for a 3-0 lead.

Four minutes later it was Prindiville completing his hat trick on an individual effort down the left wing as he fired a quick wrist shot past the Minden netminder. Still on the same shift, it was once again Prindiville with his fourth of the game, pulling the trigger on yet another 3-way passing play with linemates Andy Dawson and Joshua Brown. Haliburton then made it 6-0 when Kyle Boughner converted a goalmouth pass from Nick Judge at 10:09.

Minden finally broke Jeremy Moynes bid for a second consecutive shutout when Mark Fisher scored on a breakaway with just over three minutes remaining, but Haliburton got that one back when Nick Judge again set up Kyle Boughner who made no mistake with his second goal in a row and a 7-1 Haliburton lead. Minden closed out the scoring with Kolt Smith scoring on a breakaway with 22 seconds left on the clock.

The Husky Bs next action is at home on October 22 when they travel to Bobcaygeon.

Haliburton Atom Cs confront tough Beaverton competition

The Haliburton Atom Cs started their season at home on Oct. 9 against a strong team from Beaverton. Beaverton showed up with only seven players, but the lack of players worked to their advantage as their captain, R.J. O'Connell, was on the ice for almost the entire game. That showed on the scoreboard as he registered six goals and three assists.

The game started as a tight-checking affair with Beaverton opening the scoring early in the first period. But the Huskies tied it with less than three minutes left in the first on a goal by Cory Sisson and assisted by Gerald Sharp and Ryan Goldenberg.

The Huskies took a 2-1 lead early in the second on a nice solo effort by Cory Sisson. Beaverton offence kicked in and scored five straight goals to go ahead 6-2. The Huskies made it 6-3 just over 30 seconds into the third period as Ryan Goldenberg scored on a set up by Cory Sisson. Beaverton fired two more goals to go up 8-3.

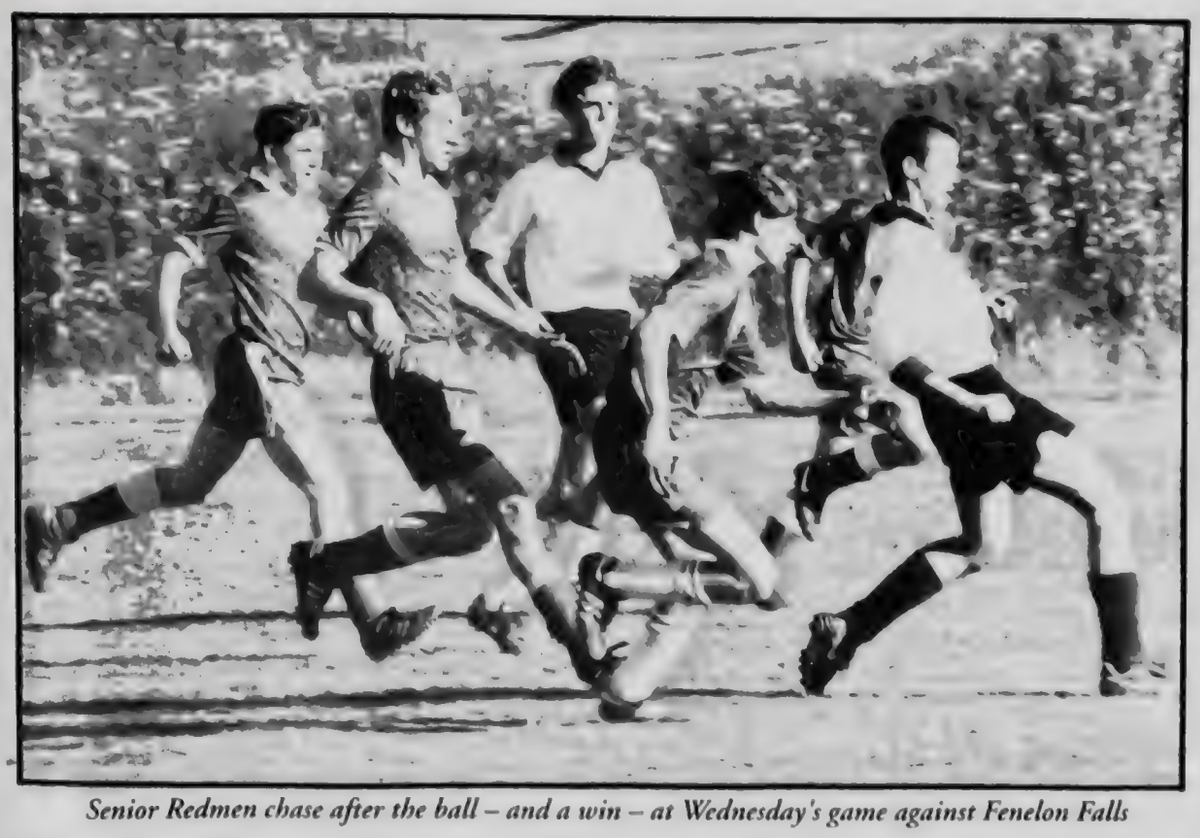
Darren Kirkpatrick scored the Huskies' last goal on a pass from Matthew Brown. When the buzzer went the Huskies had taken a 10-4 thumping.

On Oct. 15, the Huskies travelled back to Beaverton with that loss still in the back of their minds. The Huskies played a solid game with everybody giving an extra effort. The Huskies opened the scoring when Gerald Sharp took a Cory Sisson pass and fired a low shot from behind the Beaverton goalie. Beaverton tied the game less than a minute later. The Huskies scored mid-way through the first period to take a 2-1 lead as Cory Sisson scored on a set up by Matthew Hutchinson and Darren Kirkpatrick.

Beaverton managed the only goal of the second to tie the game at 2-2.

Beaverton jumped out fron by two goals when the team captain scored twice to complete his hat trick. Doug Roswell scored his first as a Husky with Cory Poole and Adam Tomlinson earning assists.The Huskies couldn't manage any more goals and the game ended in a 4-3 Beaverton win.

The Huskies went home with a loss, but it was a positive defeat. The players played with a team concept and better positional play. Some of the Huskies players who didn't get their names on the score sheet, but played solidly were Adam Frybort, Chris Jung, Garrett Pockett, Jeff Packard, Ryan Goldenberg and "The Little Cat," Ryan Hutson.



Senior Redmen chase after the ball – and a win – at Wednesday's game against Fenelon Falls

Senior boys' soccer squad clinches first

The senior boys soccer team clinched first place in Kawartha West, with a dramatic 2-1 win over Fenelon Falls last Wednesday in Haliburton.

Play was even for most of the game. The Falcons took advantage of the bright sun shining in goal-keeper Roberto Fuerra's eyes in the first half and took a 1-0 lead.

With only 10 minutes left in the game Jay Corby scored on a 2-touch corner kick from Jonathan Bishop and Ryan Goodall to tie the game. Then, with less than 5 minutes to go in the game, Scott Bacon lofted the ball up into the air forcing the Fenelon keeper to stare into the sun. He misjudged it and Scott's well-timed shot soared into the right corner for the winner.

The senior Redmen have one more regular season game against I.E. Weldon here in Haliburton next Thursday, October 20th. Kick-off is 2:30 for the juniors, 3:30 for the seniors. The seniors team will then host the Kawartha West Championship game here in Haliburton on Tues., Oct. 25th, kick-off at 2:30 p.m. It is not yet known who their opponents are.

Hometown sports siblings come back to share wisdom

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

Set realistic goals and keep a low profile, say Lesley Tashlin and Taly Williams, whose athletic abilities have taken them to national levels of competition

Before any athlete can reap the rewards of success, he or she must first learn to cope with the agony of failure.

And for siblings Lesley Tashlin and Taly Williams, who both took different routes into the sporting world but paved their trails from Haliburton, overcoming defeat was key to their successes today.

The two Haliburton Highlands Secondary School graduates came home to share advice, wisdom and encouragement to young athletes and coaches at last Sunday's Leadership and Coaching Fair at YMCA Camp Wanakita. It was a way, said Tashlin, "to give a little bit back to the community."

A member of the National Track Team, Tashlin had recently hoped to make the Francophone Track Team, and despite recording her personal best time, she finished third in her heat and failed to make the grade. "I wanted to make the team and I didn't so I was pretty upset but that's when you have to take time for self-reflection and re-evaluate things," said the 100 metre hurdler who competed in the Commonwealth Games and is now setting her sights on the upcoming World Indoors and Pan/American Games, and down the road maybe even the 1996 Olympics in Atlanta.

She said the key to reaching your potential is setting realistic goals. "For me that was shaving off one/one hundredth of a second of my time or not hitting any hurdles."

Her not-so-little brother Taly (she's 25 he's 23) was accidentally left of the Canadian Football League's draft list last year and was then cut in training camp by the Hamilton Tiger Cats. His key to his present success as a devensive back for the rejuvenated Toronto Argonauts was not lettinge those obstacles phase him or allow doubts to enter into his mind.

"When I was left off the draft list it was devastating...but when I was cut by the Ticats I was more annoyed," said the Waterloo University engineering graduate. The key to being successful in whatever your goals are, he said, "is to keep a low profile and not set yourself up for a fall."

One didn't know the potential she had until it was eventually harnessed and unleashed by her coach while the other had no interest in the world of sports until a later age. Despite the differences in the roads they took, the two of them now find themselves sitting side by side under the spotlight of professional sports.

Achieving success in their sports, they said, had a lot to do with family support. But, in the end it came from a desire within. As a teenager, Taly "was never into sports and never was involved in teams until high school. Football was never my type of sport. Whenever my dad wanted to watch football I wanted to watch Walt Disney."

It was later in high school and then university, he realized he had the talent to "play with the big boys" and the desire to pursue that goal.

For Lesley, it wasn't until a coach recognized her talents that she began to seriously reach for gold. Said her trainer Craig Taylor, himself a former #1 ranked national sprinter: "When she first started she didn't realize she was as good as she is and that she belonged with the other top girls."

Taylor's main advice for other coaches is keeping the channels of communication open to athletes. "Be available for the kids day in and day out so they know they can come to with their problems. Listen to them too, many coaches are so busy telling and telling but they aren't listening and that's crucial," Taylor advised, saying on many occasions he takes phone calls in the middle of the night from athletes he coaches. "They have got to be able to count on you."

Deer and moose hunters asked to help with MNR's study of Minden wildlife populations

The Ministry of Natural Resources requires your help in collecting information on moose and deer populations in the Minden area. A crest will be given out for all moose and deer jaws submitted to the Ministry of Natural Resources Office in Minden.

Deer jaws only, will also be collected by Terry Cowen in Haliburton. Terry is located along Highway #121 east of Haliburton at Paradise Lake.

For hunters bringing in jaws, information required will include hunter's name, date animal shot, township where animal was shot and sex of the animal shot.

Hunters will receive a blaze orange hat in exchange for a suitably prepared deer or moose hide. In the Minden area hides should be taken to the Minden Live Bait and Tackle Shop, located behind the Minden Auction Barn at the intersection of Highway #35 and #121. The hours of operation at this collection centre are 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday to Saturday.

Play therapy includes family

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

For child therapy experts, the playroom is not simply a place for fun and games.

It's a place where troubled children can come to terms with their feelings or their relationships with their parents.

It's a place where parents can gain a better understanding of their child's true personality.

And it's also a place where therapists can help parents and children begin to improve their lines of communication.

"The playroom is a wonderul little laboratory for what goes on elsewhere," says clinical psychologist and play therapist, Dr. Louise Guerney.

Guerney was one of the keynote speakers featured at a play therapy conference at the PineStone last Thursday and Friday.

The conference, "Communication Through Play," was co-organized by Kinark Child and Family Services and S.I.R.C.H., Supportive Initiatives for Residents of the County of Haliburton.

Guerney, who is a Professor Emerita at Penn State University in Pennsylvania, told an audience of therapists, family workers and local parents about a method of play therapy she has devised and been using with children between the ages of four and 11.

Called filial therapy, the treatment focuses on a specific troubled child, but includes the child's entire family.

"We try to work with the whole family, even if they cannot come, as is often the case," said Guerney.

Unlike other forms of play therapy, in which a professional therapist takes part in play sessions with a child, filial therapy requires the child and the parent to hold regular play sessions together.

"This allows the parent to contribute to the healing of the child," said Guerney.

Parents are first trained by the play therapist on a few basic rules of conduct for play sessions. They are told how to set up a satisfactory playroom if they have the space or play area if they do not. They are told what kinds of toys are suitable. And they are told how to behave.

According to the filial approach to play therapy, the child is in control of how the play session unfolds. While the parent must give the child complete attention throughout the session, the parent is not supposed to criticize, praise, question or interrupt the child.

It is very important that parents stick to the play session schedule they have set up and that there are no intrusions, such as phone calls or visitors, said the therapist.

"You've got to preserve this as a time when the parent gives full attention to the child without distraction, which is very rare in this day and age."

It isn't necessary to have a lot of toys or expensive toys, she noted, but the toys used in play sessions should not be among the child's regular collection.

Suitable toys will allow the child to take out pent up aggressive behaviour or enable them to illustrate their special skills.

"Modelling clay is ideal because the child can bang it and bend it or make things from it."

Throughout the process, parents continue to visit the play therapist to report progress and discuss their findings.

"Filial therapy brings about the same kinds of benefits that come through working with therapists, but it also has the additional benefit of parental involvement," she said.

Smoking near highway will be dangerous to students' health

BOARD OF EDUCATION MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE BRIEFS

The following are brief reports of items discussed at last Tuesday night's meeting of the Haliburton County Board of Education's management committee.

Dangers of smoking

Committee members and school board staff fear the dangers of smoking will increase even further for Haliburton high school smokers when the province outlaws smoking on all school properties this fall.

The Ontario government's new smoke-free schools legislation is expected to be passed some time next month and will completely ban smoking on school grounds, inside and out.

Haliburton Highlands Secondary School students who want to smoke will be forced to leave school property to light up.

The most likely locations they will go for butt breaks, say committee members, are in front of the train or down by the lake, opposite the school. Both are right alongside Highway 121. Students would have to cross the relatively busy road to get to the lakeside location, and that is what has the committee nervous.

"I'd feel awful bad if some kid got killed on the highway," said Dysart trustee Wayne Wood.

Tim Casey, also a Dysart trustee, asked director of education Brad Saunders whether the board would be liable if a student who leaves school property for a cigarette is hit by a car and injured.

Saunders said the matter would likely have to be taken to court to determine if the board would be judged negligent of providing proper care in that situation.

"We're in a three-year cycle," said committee chairman Wally Bunn. "A few years ago when the board said there was no more smoking on school property we had 40 kids, 50 kids out by the train where there are cars going by at 40 or 50 miles an hour and we almost had a couple hit ... Now the ministry is coming out and saying we have to put them back on the highway."

"No one said that this is going to be easy," said Health Unit representative Leslie Orpana, who was on hand at the meeting to outline how the new legislation will impact on schools. "No one has given us the answers as to what to do when students go off property and tie up traffic or annoy neighbours, but it doesn't give you the right to do nothing."

In some cases, she said, other schools dealing with the problem of student smokers crossing highways have called on the assistance of local police to make sure the students are not putting themselves or others in danger.

Orpana told committee members the task of making certain no one smokes on school property is shared by both the board and the Health Unit.

The brunt of the burden, however, will lay in the hands of the board and the high school.

The Health Unit does not have the staff or funds to respond to complaint calls against a single person smoking in a non-designated area, she said. It will only follow up complaints of people repeatedly smoking in banned areas.

Aside from outlawing smoking on school grounds, the province's Tobacco Control Act will also:

- prohibit tobacco sales in pharmacies and stores that contain pharmacies as of December 31
- raise the legal age to buy tobacco to 19 from 18
- ban all vending machines that sell tobacco products
- prohibit smoking in retail establishments, financial institutions, self-serve laundries, barber shops, hairdressers and amusement arcades

"The purpose of the legislation is not to attack smokers, but to prevent children from smoking," said Orpana.

Facelift needed

The exterior of Wilberforce Public School is in need of a face lift to correct its current condition of badly peeling paint, said superintendent of business administration Jim Bradley.

He told committee members he would like to include some funds in the board's budget to cover the cost of having the school covered with some form of siding to solve the recurring problem.

The board had previously investigated the possibility of sandblasting the building to remove the paint, but was told the brickwork is too soft to withstand the treatment, said Bradley.

The alternative, he said, appears to be to have the school sided.

"It's a shame in one sense because I think it's one of the prettiest schools we have and to put steel siding on it might make it look like a barn, but something desperately needs to be done," Bradley said.

School bus safety

This is School Bus Safety Week (October 17-21), so to help spread the word about getting to and from school safely, school board staff put together a pamphlet of rules and safety tips.

Bradley presented the pamphlet for the committee's approval before the board gives it to elementary school teachers to pass on to their students.

The pamphlet, which details safety rules for boarding, riding and exiting a school bus during regular and emergency circumstances, is aimed at children up to the Grade 4 and 5 level.

Teachers in all of the board's schools have been provided with school bus safety rules and teaching materials to help their students learn more about bus safety.

Raising its share of costs board's "biggest challenge"

observation bed at the urgent care facility.)

Stuart Baker, the board's chairman, agreed that the determining factor is the funding provided by the Ministry. It is paying for 80% of the construction costs and 100% of the operating costs. The board must live within the existing operating budgets of the two hospitals and the Ministry will not allow it to have a deficit. If there's not enough money for the board's plans, then the board's budget would have to be redrawn.

"Sure you can ask for the (stabilization) beds. You can't get them," said Doug Campbell. He wants the 30 long-term care beds to be built onto Hyland Crest to take advantage of existing infrastructure, but to his anger and frustration, the Ministry insists on building them in Haliburton. His efforts to get the Ministry to show him the dollar figures have been for naught, he says.

"Why don't they come up here and face us man to man," Campbell said. He believes the Ministry cannot prove that the Haliburton site is preferable.

A few weeks ago, several board members and Elliott met with Ministry officials. "The Ministry of Health remained adamant that the status quo is not sustainable," said Kate Reed, the board's interim support staff. The Ministry said its top priority was to have the board decide on a location for the acute care beds.

Joyce Gostock urged the board to make a decision because she feared services would be lost if the Ministry's wishes weren't carried out. "If they withdraw the opportunity (to add beds and upgrade Hyland Crest), what will happen in Minden? What will happen to the 30 long-term care beds? We're doing a great disservice to the community by hedging around."

Baker made it clear that MacDuff's motion supported the consolidation of acute care beds in Haliburton. But Ted Wilkes, who seconded the motion, also wanted it made clear that the motion was an entire package and the bed site was not to be voted on separately. "People are looking for emergency services, it's the key issue."

He says the board's biggest challenge is raising its $4-million share of the costs and this can't be done unless the people in the Minden area feel they are retaining some services. "I think we owe it to the people to try."

Barbara Wright attended the meeting with the Ministry. Her qualm about the motion was "if we send this to them they'll only read about the consolidation ot the beds... This is the same motion we dealt with before." (That motion, simply to consolidate the beds in Haliburton, was defeated at the previous meeting in a 7-7 vote.)

"We need to negotiate the very best we can for Minden," said Rheta Jones, who supported the consolidation of beds in Haliburton. Urgent care has "so many possibilities" that aren't included in MacDuff's motion. But she said "we can't really do any harm" by voting for the motion.

At an urgent care facility, "a physician will do whatever he feels necessary to begin treatment," said Lussing. "There's no limit except by the technology and funding."

"The board will decide what urgent care means," Baker noted. The board will have to look at the costs of other components of the package and compromise on what services are affordable.

There was some discussion of the view that the Ministry doesn't understand the needs of rural Ontario. Closing a hospital in the Highlands would not have as much impact as closing a hospital in Kitchener-Waterloo, Wilkes said, because the weather is more severe here and driving more difficult in the winter.

The board voted against a motion to table MacDuff's motion. In the fine-tuning of the motion, MacDuff agreed to change "stabilization beds" to "observation beds for the purpose of stabilization." The vote was as follows:

Yes: Stuart Baker, Barbara Dawson (whose proxy vote was voiced by Joyce Gostock who voted yes "with reservations"), Joyce Gostock, Rheta Jones, Dwaine Lloyd, Bev MacDuff, Gord Monk (whose proxy vote was voiced by Paul Heffer), Hugh Nichol, Ted Wilkes, Ken Wilson and Barbara Wright.

No: Doug Campbell, Paul Heffer and Lisa Mercer.

Baker commended Heffer for using Monk's proxy vote to say yes because he felt that's how Monk would have voted if he could have attended the meeting, even though Heffer himself voted no. "I find that (to be the action of) a person of conscience."

ALZHEIMER'S DONATION: Ruth Rice, Worthy Matron of the Haliburton Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, presents a cheque for almost $1,200 to Alzheimer's Society representative Norma Dolighan and Sherry Mullholland of Haliburton County Home Support. The funds will be used to help fight Alzheimer's disease.

Hospitals are shrinking everywhere

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

If the people of Haliburton County want to know what will happen if there's no resolution to our hospital debate, then they should take a look around the province.

Ten hospitals will be closed in the Toronto area. Five hospitals in Sudbury have been told there's only enough money for two hospitals. Two hospitals in Kitchener-Waterloo must go.

"Everyone wants to hold onto their own hospital but in this day and age it doesn't look possible," says Barbara Selkirk, a Ministry of Health spokesperson.

Marshall Elliott, the executive director of the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit, points to what's happening in Port Hope and Cobourg. When those two communities were told that they'd have to consolidate their hospitals, it was thought there'd be the equivalent of the 150 beds in Cobourg and 50 beds in Port Hope. Now the two communities have been told the province will only fund one 75-bed hospital.

"That's what the Ministry is progressing towards – we've gone from 200 beds to 75 beds," he told Wednesday's meeting of the Acting Health Services Board.

At St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough, 40 beds were eliminated from what used to be a 196-bed facility. Executive director Frank Lussing says that in another three or four years, there will probably be 100 fewer beds in Peterborough. However, at St. Joseph's Hospital (which owns the two local hospitals), there's been a 40% increase in patient activity because of more out-patient services.

"Beds are no longer the indicator of the range of services," Lussing says.

There is a fear that unless the local board can consolidate the beds at one site, the province will take back the money it has earmarked for the project.

Elliott said his personal impression after meeting with Ministry officials is that "they want some decision made on what to do with the money they've set aside or it will be lost...

"When I see what's happening in other districts, I'm surprised the treasurer hasn't taken the money (from the Ministry for the local projects)," Elliott said. "The Ministry of Health can only hold onto the money for so long – the treasurer is after it... Sooner or later the treasurer will say you have that money but you didn't spend it (so I'll take it back)'."

"Communities are faced with very tough decisions they've never had to face before," Selkirk said in a telephone interview. "It makes it more and more difficult if they don't collobarate... The community will have to work through this and ask what's best for the county as a whole."

Deficit could mean service cuts

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

The Haliburton and Minden hospitals are heading towards a combined deficit of more than $200,000 and perhaps even $300,000.

"We can't allow this to happen," says Frank Lussing, executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital, which owns the two local hospitals. "We'll have to come up with recommendations for adjustment."

Adjustment might mean cutting services. St. Joseph's has been trying to avoid this by lobbying the provincial government to extend its 1% budget "top up" for small hospitals to the two local hospitals, which are the smallest in Ontario. But because they're owned by the large Peterborough hospital, the province has been saying that Minden and Haliburton are not eligible for the higher grant. So far, St. Joseph's has been absorbing the smaller hospitals' deficits, even though St. Joseph's has had its own financial challenges. There have been no funding increases for the past two years.

Lussing was at Wednesday's meeting of the Acting Health Services Board to explain the "weird and wonderful" system for funding hospitals. In essence, he said, "the Ministry of Health doesn't negotiate. It tells us what we're getting at the beginning of the year."

The hospitals' fiscal year is April 1 to March 31. This year, a $50,800 deficit was budgetted for the Minden Hospital. But by the end of August, the deficit had already reached $76,700. Likewise, in the first four months of the Haliburton Hospital's fiscal year, the actual deficit was $44,600, much higher than the budgetted deficit of $18,100.

In both cases, the hospitals were busier than expected, especially in the emergency hdepartments.

St. Joseph's is not allowed to ask for more money to cover the increased demand.

Walker seeks return in Dysart

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Dysart et al councillor Jerry Walker can never get too far away from one of the municipality's most contentious political issues.

Not only does the entire length of a proposed multi-million dollar sewer line fall within the boundaries of his ward, but also the Ward 2 incumbent can clearly see the planned sewer site along the north shore of Lake Kashagawigamog every day from the windows of his south shore home.

Walker, who is seeking a second term in office, says there is a lot of incorrect information being passed throughout the community about the sewer line and the costs involved in its installation.

The projected estimate to extend the sewer line is $5.7-million, he said. The municipality has already received approval for provincial funding for 75 per cent of the price-tag, but the remainder has to be contributed by users.

The municipality's consultants have said the cost to each individual residence and business hooking up to the line would be about $6,000.

Walker, however, says this fee is far too high.

"We have to get the lake cleaned up and we have to make this thing work, but we can't expect the people to pay that kind of money," he said.

Dysart has until this spring to tell the province if it plans to use the funding allocation on the project. In the meantime, Walker said, the municipality will have to go back to its consultants to see if there are areas where it can reduce costs.

He also said the municipality should approach the province for increased funding.

"Council hasn't made any definite decisions about it yet," he said. "We're definitely going to have to get the costs reduced to the end user if we're going to go ahead with the plan."

At some point, the municipality will have to look at the possibility of getting rid of the septic systems on the north shore of the lake and hooking that side up to its sewage facilities as well, said Walker.

One of Dysart's most important achievements while he has been on council, said Walker, was the expansion of the municipality's sewage treatment plant.

By increasing the capacity at the facility, the municipality has made it possible for new developments to locate in the village of Haliburton and for the local economy to grow, he said. It also paves the way for the sewer line extension and a cleaner Lake Kashagawigimog.

Another highlight was the renovation of the auditorium at Haliburton's arena, he said.

"The majority of the work was carried out by volunteers which really helped reduce the costs of that project," he said.

Walker , whose business, Walker's Heating and Cooling Systems, has been in operation here since 1982, said he originally ran for office hoping to bring the perspective he has gained as a businessman to council.

Over the past three years, he said, council has been able to keep tax hikes down to an average of about 2.5 per cent per year.

"This has been pretty tough to do with all the cutbacks that have been brought in by the provincial and federal governments," he said.

Jerry Walker

Wage rollbacks and staff cuts brought in by the Social Contract have also been hard on the municipality, Walker explained.

He cited the example of the roads department. While road crews have had their wages frozen for the past couple years, their workload has increased. Not only has the municipality carried out more work with infrastructure grants, but also two roads staff who retired could not be replaced under the terms of the Social Contract.

"Still, with all that, they've been able to get all the work done, which I congratulate them for," he said.

Walker says he hasn't set any new goals for himself. If re-elected, he said he wants to help council continue to push ahead on all of the initiatives it is working on presently.

"It's such a learning process that it's taken me a good year to two years to feel comfortable with the position," he said. "You come in thinking you can change this and change that, but you soon realize you just can't do it that quickly."

AND THE WINNER IS... Ken Maguire (with his wife Eileen at his side), winner of the Ridgewood Ford car draw, accepts the keys to the Ford Mustang from Arcadia Lodge Master Gareth Kellet which he won in the draw held last Saturday to raise funds for Arcadia Lodge. Ridgewood President Larry Moynes is on the right.

Canada's best children's performers will be coming to Haliburton thanks to concert series

Great children's entertainment, musical and theatrical and the ballet, are right here in Haliburton County. Thanks to the continuing enthusiastic support of audiences and community sponsors, the Haliburton County Children's Concert Series is back at it again for its ninth season. With the help of the Ontario Arts Council, they are able to offer Canada's most sought after performers and rising stars.

Just look at what's coming to Minden and Haliburton:

- Iguanodon Theatre: Bright iridescent puppets turn the pitch black stage into a fin-tastic aquarium of activity. Music becomes a metaphor for social harmony and the glowing puppets bring the drama of expanding our world views to life. It's Sunday, November 27, 2 p.m. at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden. Sponsored by JBK Electric, K Enterprises, RTL Contracting and TMS Services
- Judy and David: Their sense of joy and playfulness permeate everything they do and have helped them put new life into traditional children's songs, such as the Little Teapot, which is now the Funky Teapot. This dynamic duo is already "going global", with their songs being recorded in 12 different languages in 28 countries around the world. Don't miss them at ASES on Sunday, Jan. 22, 1995. Sponsored by Minden Home Hardware.
- Ontario Ballet Theatre: This performance of "The Lion, The Witch and the Wardrobe" brings the C.S. Lewis story aoubt two children wo discover a magical land to life. Children will be spellbound by the beauty and life of the ballet itself. The ballet will be at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, Sun. Feb. 26, 1995 at 2 p.m. Sponsored by Video City/Music City in Haliburton.
- Kirk and Magoo: This wacky pair has played and written music for everybody from Sharon, Lois and Bram to the National Ballet. It's a folksy, rockin' and rappin' show on Sun. April 2 at 2 p.m. at HHSS. Sponsored by Village Court Pharmacy, Haliburton.

Passports for this incredible series go on sale this week and are available at Master's Bookstore, Haliburton; CHACE Place Minden and Haliburton; The Storeroom, Minden. The subscription rate is only $17 per person for all four concerts. For more information, please call 754-3512.

Forest owners' clear-cut threat could lead to court challenge

County tree-cutting by-law could be enforced if owners carry out their promise

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

The Haliburton County tree-cutting by-law "wouldn't stand a chance" if challenged in court by forest owners, who have threatened to clear-cut portions of their lands to compensate for the discontinuation of the Managed Forest Tax Rebate program, says Peter Schleifenbaum.

Despite extending until next year their Nov. 1st deadline for disallowing the use of private forest lands for winter trails, the Haliburton Forest Owners' Association says some members may still have to turn to clear-cutting to raise enough money to pay property taxes if a solution isn't reached.

Dysart by-law officers had considered laying charges against Schleifenbaum, part-owner of the Haliburton Forest and Wild Life Reserve, back in the spring when as a show of protest, he ordered the clear-cut of 38 acres of his forest at Little Kennisis Lake.

Schleifenbaum, who has a doctorate in forestry, said in an interview that he would fight any charges in court on the basis of a provision in the by-law which states any tree-cutting must be in "good forestry practice."

"Any charges wouldn't have a chance of standing up in court," said Schleifenbaum, pointing out that more than three-quarters of crown land which is forested by the Ministry of Natural Resources is clear- cut. "Look at what the MNR does — clear-cutting therefore must be accepted as 'good forestry practice'. You can't say that the government can do it on crown lands but the public can't do it on private lands."

He said that prior to the spring clear-cut, a by-law officer contacted him by phone "and told me there was some concern that what I was doing might be illegal."

Dysart et al by-law enforcement officer Don Van Nood said that while charges against Schleifenbaum were considered, "as a registered forester Schleifenbaum supplied evidence that the cutting was done in good forestry practice."

Van Nood said that if forest owners carried out their promise to clear-cut their lands, "we would have to handle that situation if it occurred," and whether or not charges would be laid would depend on a number of factors such as if it was done in "good forestry practice", who was doing it and whether or not the person was a registered forester. He believes the by-law would be upheld if challenged in court.

Five warnings have been issued in the last four years to persons violating the tree protection by-law.

The MNR's Peter Hynard responded to Schleifenbaum's argument by saying "the fact that the Ministry of Natural Resources uses the process of clear-cutting as a harvesting technique under specific circumstances does not mean it is an appropriate practice in all situations.

"There are circumstances where clear-cutting is not a proper forestry practice," he continued. He believes the by-law could stand up to the test of a court challenge "if it were used in the county under those conditions."

Haliburton County Warden Jim McMahon, while not responsible for the enforcement of municipal by-laws, says he believes that in the case of the Little Kennesis Lake cutting, "it happened so fast without any notice really and was just to get attention so in that case the by-law should have been enforced."

McMahon added that if the forest owners go ahead with promises to clear-cut their lands "the county would have to step in and enforce the by-law to save the beauty of the county. It would be devastating to the county because we are selling tourism and if the trees are gone what have we got to show?"

The by-law was enacted in 1984 to protect young timber from premature harvesting as well as the shores of lakes and rivers from unregulated harvesting. Among the many restrictions it outlines are the cutting of any trees under 12 inches in diameter and any trees within 300 feet of a residential shoreline or 50 feet of any government-owned road or highway.

Wingfield's Folly packs legion hall

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

THE HALIBURTON HIGHLANDS Concert Series' first production of the season brought Bay Street executive turned farmer Walt Wingfield back to Haliburton on Sunday night.

Wingfield's Folly, the third installment of the highly acclaimed Wingfield Trilogy, played to a nearly full house at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall

The one-man comedy follows Wingfield, who traded his suit and tie for a pair of overalls and a cap, as he tries to adjust to the "simpler" life on the farm.

Actor Rod Beattie convincingly jumps back and forth from character to character as he plays all of Wingfield's Persophone Township neighbours.

By the trilogy's final chapter, and two years of "profit-free" farming, Wingfield is beginning to realize that farming, or at least his version of it, is no simple task

At the beginning of the play, Wingfield says, "Running a farm is like standing in the middle of a field in a cold wind tearing up $20 bills."

Wingfield finally hits on the idea that the only way for farmers to make any profits is to control how much they spend. Farmers, he reasons, have no control over the prices they can fetch for their produce or livestock, but they can take charge of how much money they pay out.

He gathers his well-meaning neighbours together and proposes a barter system where they will use the new 7th Line Currency, or Walts, to pay each other for goods and services.

The only trouble is the not-so-well-meaning Dry Cry, who operates the local store, floods the market with counterfeit Walts in an effort to keep his own business alive.

Wingfield, who has been acting as the central bank, is brought to the verge of bankruptcy. He comes to the conclusion he has been a complete failure in the agriculture business and decides it's time to head back to the city and his old job with the brokerage firm.

Faced with losing their new neighbour, the residents of Persophone realize

Wingfield has been more than a continual source of amusement as he struggles away on his farm — he has also been a real friend.

Through this realization, the neighbours also see what it means to be a community and the importance they each hold within it.

"For the past while the 7th Line has been more fun than Disney World," says the gruff Squire. "I think I'll retire right here."

Maggie, who has long waited for Wingfield to express his affections for her, finally decides to take the bull by the horns herself. She convinces Wingfield he is a success and that they should operate his farm together as a married couple.

The comedy and its messages were received very well by the audience at the Legion. Many stayed after the play for coffee and snacks, and the opportunity to speak with Beattie.

The next production in the concert series is a performance by violinist Ioan Harea on November 13. Originally from Romania, Harea plays a selection of classical songs and traditional Gypsy music.

Single tickets can be bought at the door for $17, adults, and $10, students.

Bishop decides not to run for reeve

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

Dysart et al Reeve Curry Bishop has announced "reluctantly" that he will not run for re-election.

His desire to spend more time with his wife and family, he said, was the most important factor behind his decision. "It's not much of a life for her and it's so hectic," he said in an interview.

In looking back on his three years in office, Bishop said he was proud of this own record as well as that of the council which he oversaw. (Bishop was appointed as reeve when Chris Hodgson stepped down after winning the provincial by-election in March.)

"I believe the outgoing council has made very considerable achievements during a period of forced fiscal restraints," he said, adding "had I not been there the tax increase would have been more. We did more with less."

Though he has no regrets about any of his decisions during the three years in office, he did admit that some of the changes he would have liked to see occur never materialized. "I feel that we are over-regulated both provincially and municipally...I always thought civil service was out of control and look at it now," said Bishop adding "council should have taken more of a position of being more of an arbitrator and interpreter of rules and regulations to be fair about things. Fairness didn't come into the picture as much as I had hoped it would."

His greatest challenge of the three years he said, was the daunting task of creating a spark for a damp economy while at the same time downsizing the county's civil service.

Bishop said he has no plans to re-enter the political scene, but left the door open to a future role if he were to be approached.

He offered his best wishes to the next elected council and thanked Chris Hodgson for his endeavors.

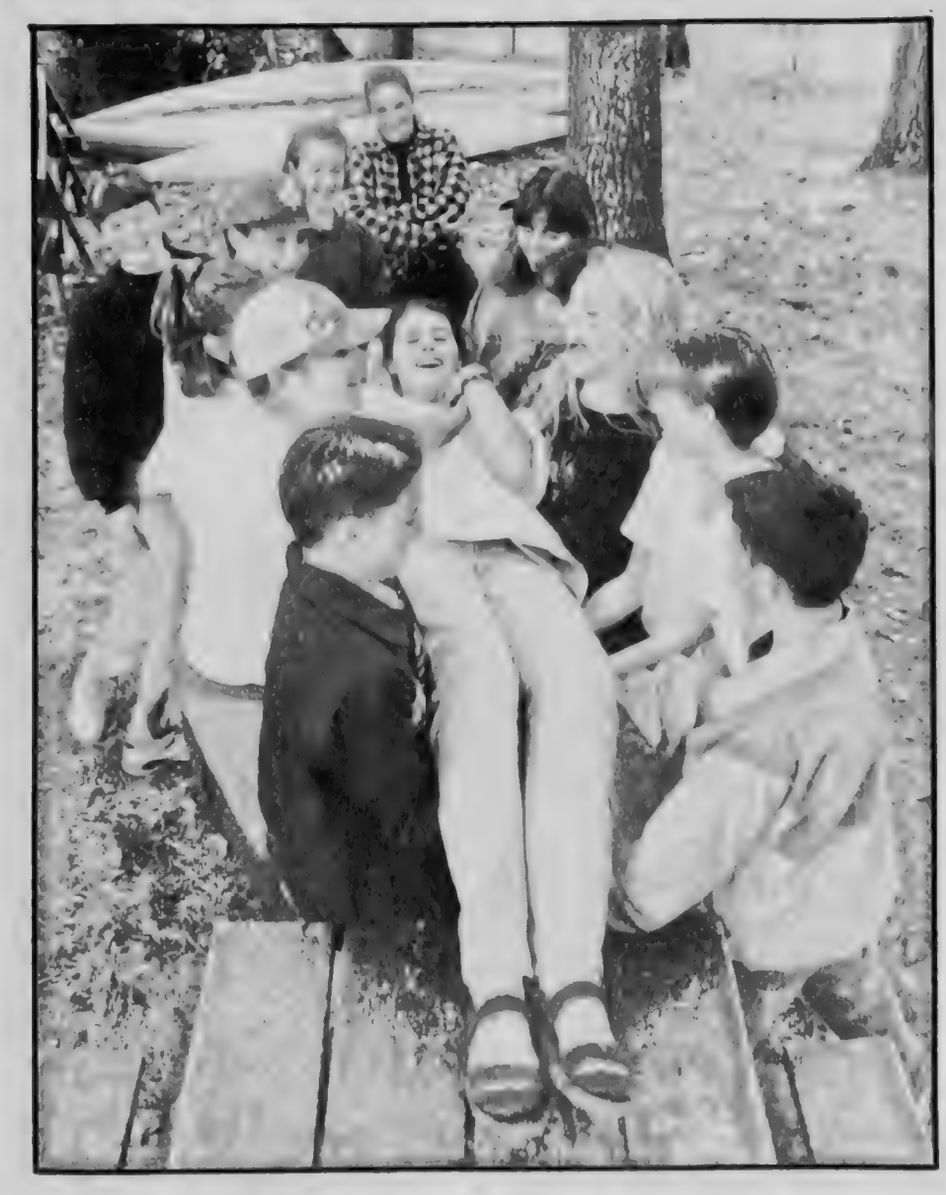
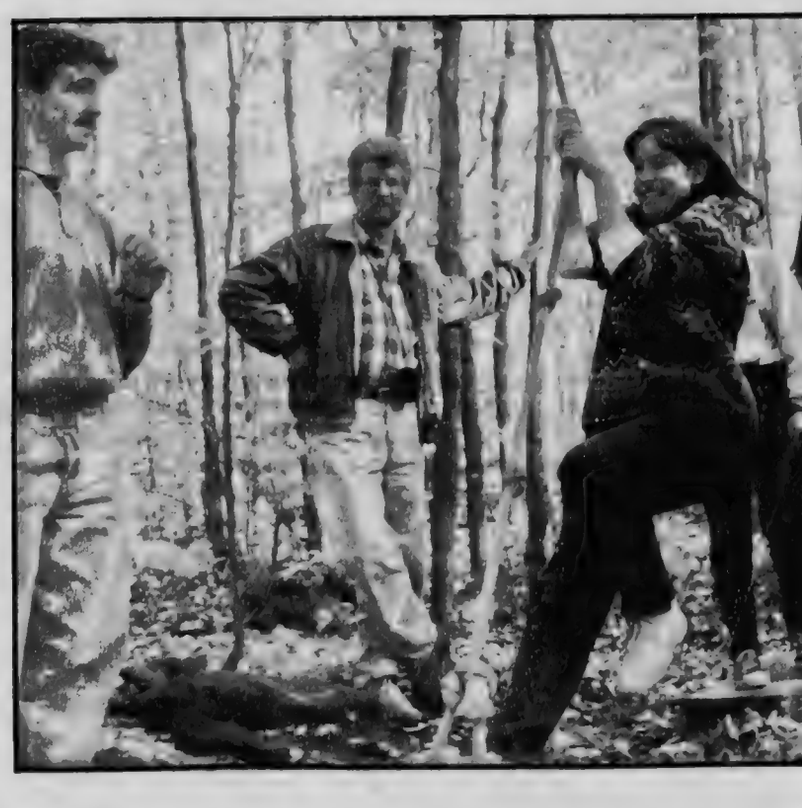
Students helping students





High school students led elementary school kids through exercises at Bark Lake Leadership Centre last week to prepare them for their new roles as peer helpers. Clockwise from the top: Cara Donnery demonstrates 'Trust Falls'; Katherine Hagerman tries to cap the volcano; a student prepares for the fall into her classmates' arms; Kim McNeil and guidance counsellor Laura Willis watch the action; and Ainsley Hoare swings over shark-infested waters.

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

Thursday was far from a typical school day for a small group of local elementary students.

First they had to make it safely across the shark-infested waters separating their quickly sinking ship and a tiny deserted island.

Then there was an unpredictable volcano that needed to be capped.

And if that wasn't trying enough, they also had to negotiate a maze while blind-folded, depending only on the instructions of their schoolmates to avoid bumping their heads on hanging objects or stumbling into obstacles.

All in a day's lessons.

These are just a few of the activities about 75 Grade 7 and 8 students from Archie Stouffer Elementary School, J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School and Cardiff Public School took part in at the Bark Lake Leadership Centre last week.

The students have all volunteered to join the schools' new Peer Helping Program. Modeled on a similar program that was started at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School two years ago, the program enlists students from higher grades to assist teachers and children in lower grades.

In the true spirit of students helping other students, six peer tutors from the high school led the elementary children through the various exercises, along with the assistance of guidance counsellors from each school.

And while the sharks and the volcano and the deserted island in the activities may only be imaginary, the problem-solving skills the students had to rely on to confront these forces are very real.

"The games challenge the children," explained Kim McNeil, a Grade 12 student and peer tutor. "They make them take risks, but only as much risk as they want to take."

The exercises also give the students the opportunity to build confidence in themselves, learn to co-operate better with others and place greater trust in their schoolmates, said McNeil.

"They have to be really confident and believe in themselves before they can help others believe in themselves."

In the sinking-ship activity, all the children from a group of about 15 stand tightly on a low wooden platform, representing the sinking ship. A much smaller wooden platform, the safe haven of a deserted island, is located about 10 feet away. Each child is supposed to use a rope swing to evacuate the sinking ship and reach the island. Anyone who drops off in between is shark bait.

As more children depart the sinking ship the island becomes more crowded. Aside from taking the initial risk of swinging over shark-infested waters, the exercise forces the students to think as a group and co-operate so that nobody on the island is knocked into the dangerous waters.

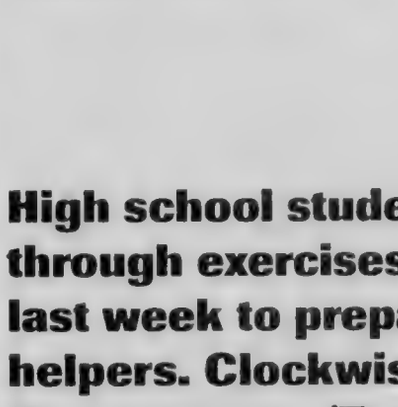
In the maze activity, children work in pairs. One of them is blind-folded and must walk through an obstacle course strewn with chairs, tables and an assortment of other stumbling blocks. It is up to the other partner to guide the blind-folded students through the maze, hitting as few obstacles as possible.

Not only does this activity require students to give very clear instructions, said McNeil, but also they have to rely heavily on their listening skills when blind-folded.

Another activity focused literally on peer support and trust. After gradually working up from lower heights, individual peer helpers stand on a picnic table and let themselves fall backwards into the arms of their classmates.

After the students completed each exercise, they would discuss with the high school peer tutor how the skills they practised in that activity could help them as peer helpers in the classroom.

Dave Kennedy, a guidance counsellor at JDHES, and Maureen Bennett, a guidance counselor at ASES, said peer helpers are assisting teachers in a variety of tasks at the schools.



In some cases a peer helper may work one-on-one with a child from a lower grade that needs extra help in any given subject. Other peer helpers are assisting small groups of students.

"Where the children help out depends on where the teacher feels the needs are," said Bennett.

Peer helpers do not have to have the highest marks in their classes, but it is important that they be responsible, said the counsellors. Their duties as helpers will require the students to miss about two classes per week, so they have to be able to make up for the work they miss while helping children in other grades.

Not only does the program give additional assistance to the students that need it, but also it enables peer helpers to improve their own scholastic abilities through instruction, the guidance counselors explained.

"It becomes an active learning situation," said Kennedy.

HHSS guidance counselor Laura Willis initiated the high school's peer tutor program. Aside from the benefits students can experience from taking part in the program, it can also give teachers a new way of looking at the subjects they teach, she said.

"Having a peer tutor in the class gives us a fresh outlook as teachers," she said. "It gives us the student's perspective."

She said the peer tutor who helped in her business English class last year, Craig Harding, gave her useful advice about exercises the kids would likely find boring.

McNeil, who was in the class, said the peer tutor did make the lessons more exciting.

The high school's peer tutoring program is offered as a credit course. The six students leading the elementary children through exercises at Bark Lake were carrying out the independent study portion of the program.

"We're really proud of the program we've got and proud of the kids that are involved," said Willis.

"Abused women and their children will see that the community cares and wants to end violence," say Cathy Johnston, standing, and Connie Thompson, who are embarking on a "Candle of Hope" campaign. The two outreach counsellors at the YWCA Women's Safety Network in Haliburton will be selling the candles for $1 each in recognition of Wife Abuse Prevention Month in November

CANDLES OF HOPE:

November is Wife Assault Prevention Month and to let abused women and children in Haliburton know that the community does not condone violence in the home, people are asked to buy special candles to place in their windows

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

In homes across the county, there are women who live in abusive relationships.

Next month, candles of hope will burn in the window of homes belonging to people who want to show these women and their children that they care.

"If someone can see that you're burning a candle, you're showing support for women," says Cathy Johnston of the Women's Safety Network in Haliburton. "Abused women and their children will see that the community cares and wants to end violence in their lives."

The Safety Network, an outreach program of the Peterborough YWCA, will be selling the blue and white candles for $1 each. Johnston, and her fellow outreach counsellor Connie Thompson, ask people to display the candle in their window in November, which is Wife Assault Prevention Month.

As part of their public education campaign, the women will also distribute posters in the women's washrooms of local churches. The poster include the Network's phone number for women who feel it's time to reach out for help. Ministers are also being asked to devote one of their November sermons to the theme of violence in the home.

The outreach counsellors are willing to speak to any group or school about a problem which is no longer being ignored.

Johnston and Thompson say that the statistics in Haliburton County mirror those across Canada: approximately one in four women is a victim of violence in the home.

The Women's Safety Network is a place where these women can go for assistance. It may simply be a request of lawyer's name, or something as serious as the need to escape to a safe home. "We provide support, advocacy, referrals and counselling to women in abusive relationships," Thompson says of the centre's role.

But the centre is also expanding its services to all women in the county. A few months ago, it moved from Hillside House to the lower level of Halco Plaza in Haliburton. The new office is wheelchair accessible and it mixes the need for privacy with a comfortable "homey" atmosphere.

In the lounge, couches and chairs are gathered round a fireplace (which unfortunately doesn't burn real wood.) There's a television, video machine and a wall lined with books. There's also a small kitchen.

They hope the centre will become a gathering place for women, a place where women will know they are safe and amongst friends. Every Thursday morning from 10 to 11:30, there's a coffee time. Every week a video will be shown. Last week it was one about poverty; there are also NFB videos about family violence and the way women are portrayed in the media.

The library's books on women's issues can also be borrowed or read in the comfort of one of the big couches.

As well, a community advisory committee is being formed. It will oversee use of the centre and Johnston and Thompson hope women will use the centre as a place to hold meetings or special events, such as theatrical or musical concerts. It's all part of an effort to have a higher profile in the community, especially because some women still don't know the Women's Safety Network exist.

"A woman in an abusive relationship feels so isolated. She feels it's her fault and that it doesn't happen to anyone else," Thompson says. The centre lets these women know they are not alone, and there are people who care enough to want to help.

The centre is next to CHACE Place (underneath Halco Electronics and in the former location of Wok On restaurant.) The phone number is 457-3355. After hours you can call 1-800-461-7656. The call will not appear on your phone bill.

HALIBURTON HIGHLANDS OUTDOORS ASSOCIATION

DEERHOUND LOST and FOUND

This year the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association is running a service for deer and moose hunters and any persons who may find a lost hound.

If you find a lost hound during this year's moose or deer hunt, first check the dog's collar for an identification plate with the owners name and phone number. If the dog has a number clipped or painted on it, you may contact the owner using the list below, or drop the dog off at a Lost and Found Centre. If the dog has no number you may drop the dog off at any one of the nine Deerhound Lost and Found Centres listed below.

If you are the owner of a lost hound and are not registered with the Association, you should call any of the Lost & Found Centres. At the end of this year's hunt, unclaimed dogs will be turned over to the nearest municipal pound. Following the hunt, please call your municipal office.

Camps registered with the Lost and Found should display their camp number at their road entrance. To claim your dog at a Lost and Found Centre you must provide proper identification and pay a $5.00 per day boarding fee.

The Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association is an Association dedicated to the outdoor sport of hunting & fishing and currently has about 500 members. The Association thanks those individuals and businesses who have volunteered to act as a drop-off centre. If you wish to join the Association please contact Steve Berry at 286-1826 (home) or 286-2750 (business).

New site proposed

It's hoped Women's Emergency House can go behind Hillside House

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

A new location has been found for the Women's Emergency House.

It is proposed that the home for women who want to leave abusive relationships be built behind Hillside House, a complex of social service offices across from the fire department in Haliburton. The three-bedroom house, which would provide temporary and safe respite for women and their families, would be attached to the back of existing building after part of the hill was excavated.

Last Tuesday, owner Steve Bowskill and representatives of Supportive Initiatives for Residents of the County of Haliburton (SIRCH) approached Dysart et al council about the plan. The house is one of SIRCH's projects in the community.

Council agreed to the location, which had been suggested by council as a possible location during a "walkabout" with SIRCH last spring. The existing zoning does not need to be changed, but SIRCH will have to apply for a minor variance to allow for a small wing of the house which is close to the property line at Hwy. 121.

The walkabout occurred after a previous location had been made public last spring. George Street neighbours hadn't known about the plan until they saw a surveyor taking measurements to clear up a snag with the land title. Some of the neighbours protested and the landowner eventually withdrew his offer to sell the property to SIRCH. There was not enough time, however, to find a new site before the proposed construction day in May and the project had to be put on hold.

Susan Wilson, a well-known local journalist, has been hired as the project's community liaison worker on a 40-week, half-time contract. She is replacing Jude King, who is on maternity leave after her one-year contract as the project co-ordinator expired. Wilson will be overseeing the plans for the house, which it is hoped will be built next spring.

Many of the neighbours in the area have already been contacted, and will receive notice of the minor variance application, and Wilson will also be meeting with the neighbours in the next few days. A quarterly newsletter will be circulated to keep all volunteers and neighbours informed about the project's progress.

The plan is to build the Women's Emergency House behind the segment of Hillside House to the left

The house is two storeys, with an indoor garage on the main floor and the living quarters on the second floor. There are three bedrooms, two bathrooms (one of which is wheelchair accessible), a living room, kitchen, a lift between floors for wheelchairs and also space for a volunteer. Volunteers will be on site 24-hours a day whenever the house is occupied. "They'll be there to provide practical and emotional support," Jude King says of the volunteers' role. Volunteers can look after a woman's children if she has to go to an appointment and will be someone the woman can talk to, any time of the day or night. A intensive training session is planned for the spring.

Although designed for one family to be living there at a time, it is possible that two women and their children could be in the house as long as there is sufficient space.

"It's a place where a woman can go to get sorted out and get some relief so she can think about what she's going to do next," says Wilson. Right now, a woman must travel to a shelter outside the county if she wants to leave an abusive relationship. But this is very disruptive for the woman, who may have a job here, and children in school. It is far more ideal to allow a woman to be able to stay in the county for the short time it takes her to find more permanent accommodation.

When a woman decides to leave an abusive partner, she can feel very vulnerable and afraid, Wilson says. That's why it's important for the women's peace of mind to have built in safety features such as double locked doors, an alarm system, and a back wall that is inaccessible. "She needs to feel completely safe."

When the previous site was proposed, some neighbours feared what would happen if an abusive husband ever came looking for his wife. Wilson says "it is very rare for an abuser to show up at the front door of a safe house, but if it did happen and those security systems weren't in place, how terrible would we feel?"

Women who use the services of the Women's Safety Network say they like the Bowskill location for several reasons. "They feel it will be a safe place to be," especially if the OPP sub-office is moved to the present ambulance base. (Rod Thurston is building a new base on the former site of Bowskill's SkySlider, next door to Hillside House.) As well, it's within walking distance of shopping and they don't mind that it's not in a residential part of the village.

Having the social service offices in front of house "will be seen as a symbol and source of authority," the women have told SIRCH.

At first, construction of the Women's Safety House was going to be like an old-fashioned barn-raising, with teams of volunteers building the house in one week. But Wilson says that SIRCH now plans to pay to have the shell built. Volunteers will do the rest of the work. Students in Sir Sandford Fleming College's Women in Trades course in Lindsay have already built all the kitchen cupboards.

Very little public money will be spent on the project. Wilson's salary is being paid for through the Ministry of Community and Social Services but an application for a jobsOntario grant fell through after the controversy and delays in the spring. The shell will be built by a local developer on a not-for-profit lease arrangement. The county's social services department would pay a per diem rate to the Women's Emergency House, just as they pay for a woman who has to use a shelter outside the county. But the bulk of the funds will be donated by the community.

"Hundreds of people have already demonstrated their commitment to this project," Wilson says. "Among the people I've talked to, everyone is keen this should happen."

Jim Blake is on contract to raise operational funds for the project. One idea being considered is a voluntary payroll deduction. Perhaps people would agree to have $5 or $10 automatically deducted from their payroll every month. This would truly make it a grassroots project, Wilson says.

"It's like someone said – I'd rather have 1% of 100 people's efforts than 100% of one person's effort. It would show that the community really does care."

Women say they like the proposed location because it's safe and close to town, says community liaison worker Susan Wilson

S.I.R.C.H. Women's Emergency House - In Appreciation

It was almost a year ago that S.I.R.C.H., together with the community, embarked on the challenge of building Women's Emergency House. Since the first meeting to discuss the creation of the project in Haliburton County, there has been an outpouring of support from hundreds of people. Donations of labour, services, furniture, clothes, equipment and time have been tremendous. The challenge to provide a safe haven for women leaving abusive relationships continues. We would like to take a moment now to express our deepest thanks to all the people and businesses named below who have contributed so much.

CAR CARE • FALL AND WINTER '94

It's time to get your vehicle ready for winter

Cold- proofing your car involves servicing systems and checking your battery

Before the snow begins to fall, smart drivers protect themselves from Canadian winters by preparing their vehicles for colder temperatures. Cold-proofing a vehicle is easy and will keep you safe and warm. This includes checking the lubrication system, the cooling system and the battery.

THE LUBRICATION SYSTEM

Selecting the right motor oil for your engine can reduce friction and keep your engine running clean during the winter.

In colder temperatures, motor oil requires more time to lubricate the engine. We recommend selecting a thinner multigrade oil, like 5W30 or 10W30 that will reach those critical engine parts faster.

When selecting a motor oil for winter driving, look at the number in front of the "W" of a multigrade oil. The lower the number is, the better the motor oil will flow in cold weather. Multigrade oils, like 5W30 and 10W30, have additives that improve motor oil flow in colder temperatures.

In severe winter conditions, a synthetic motor oil is recommended to help with cold engine starting. According to laboratory tests, synthetic motor oils flow to vital engine parts 57 percent faster when compared to similar mineral-based oils. Choosing a synthetic motor oil will reduce engine wear, improve horsepower and fuel economy.

Check the motor oil level regularly, and change the oil and oil filter every three months or 5,000 kilometres. Read the specifications in your owner's manual to select the correct grade of motor oil recommended by the manufacturer.

THE COOLING SYSTEM

Coolant is the mixture of water and anti-freeze, usually at about a 50:50 ratio, that helps cool the engine during operation and prevents freezing of water in the radiator when the engine is idle.

The coolant system lubricates the engine block, radiator and bearings in the water pump, but can lose its effectiveness after 24 months. A radiator flush and refill is necessary once every two years, or as directed by the owner's manual. The procedure removes scale deposits, rust and dirty coolant from the system.

Also, don't forget to inspect the hoses and clamps around your radiator and replace any that are cracked. Once a year have a professional inspect your radiator, water pump, fan, thermostat, radiator cap and coolant.

THE BATTERY

The battery provides your vehicle with the power it needs to drive through snowy and ice conditions. When the temperatures drop below freezing the battery runs at 40 percent efficiency. Have a professional check the

CAR CARE • FALL AND WINTER '94

Snow tires needed on every vehicle:

Be sure your wheels are ready for winter

They're easy to overlook and often are taken for granted, but tires need to be checked regularly to ensure their long life and safe driving.

In winter, tires are especially prone to weather-related maladies, CAA cautions. Tire pressure fluctuates more with changing temperatures and slick roads can be dangerous when worn tires are used.

"The best way to avoid tire trouble is to maintain proper tire pressure and regularly examine tread wear," said Ron Horton, CAA in Peterborough.

First, make sure the tires are right for the car and driving conditions. Tires should be of the same size and brand. Radials should not be mixed with bias-ply tires. Snow tires should be mounted on the drive wheels, front or rear.

Tires, including the spare, should be checked for inflation when cold. A tire that is 25 percent under inflated can lose 20 percent of its life.

Examine the tread on tires. Even tread wear is desired and will occur when a car's suspension, including shocks and struts, is in good condition. The wheels must be aligned and properly balanced, while tires need to be fully inflated. Some tread wear problems and possible solutions include:

• When one side of the tire is wearing more than the other, wheel alignment should be checked and adjusted.

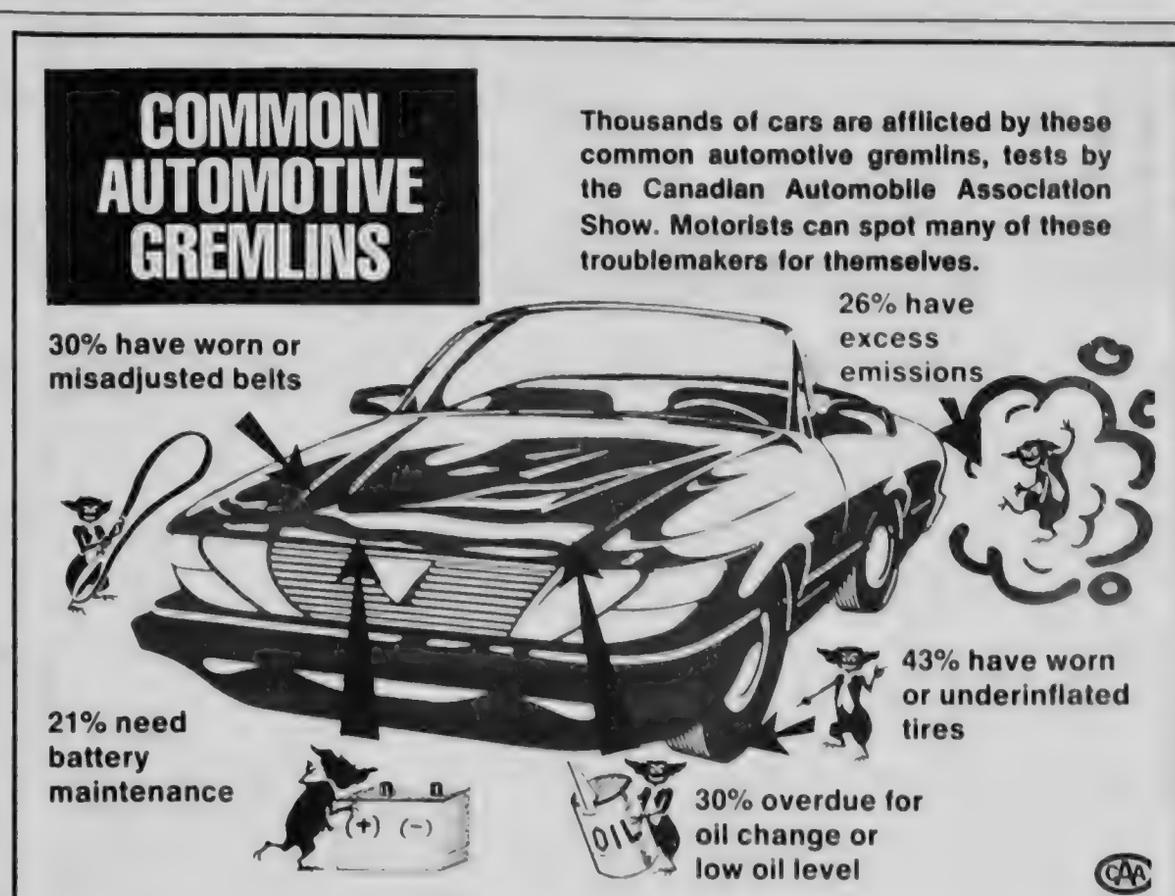
• When the centre of the tire is wearing first, it is probably over inflated. Reduce air pressure.

• When both edges are wearing faster than the centre, the tire is under inflated. Increase air pressure.

• Uneven wear or a "chopped" tread pattern is usually caused by an out-of-balance wheel or worn suspension. Have the wheel balanced or worn component replaced.

• When the tread is worn across two or more grooves, or is less than 1/16 inch deep, the tire should be replaced. Despite precautions, tires do go flat, often when least convenient.

If a tire needs to be changed at home or on the road, make certain the car is on level ground, engage the parking brake and place a block or rock behind the wheels to keep the vehicle from rolling. Consult the vehicle owner's manual for the correct position and operation of the jack. Before raising the wheel, loosen the lug nuts to keep it from spinning.



Defensive driving is vital on slippery winter roads

Motorists who learn to overcome winter's poor visibility, skids and braking difficulties reduce their risk of involvement in a weather-related collision, reports CAA.

"Studies indicate stopping distances are increased three to nine times on ice or snow, and vehicles take twice as long to stop on melting ice or snow than on hard surfaces," said Ron Horton, CAA Peterborough. "This makes defensive driving techniques especially important in winter weather."

CAA offers the following tips to help motorists steer clear of winter driving trouble:

• Improve visibility by clearing all snow and ice from the entire car – hood, roof, trunk, turn signals, tail lights, headlights, windows, mirrors and fender wells. Driving with headlights on low-beam provides better road illumination in snow and fog than using high-beams.

• Remember posted speed limits are set for ideal road and weather conditions. Slow down when visibility and road conditions are impaired by bad weather or traffic.

• Avoid sudden starts, stops and turns. Accelerate carefully so car wheels don't spin.

• Don't brake hard. The best technique for braking under icy or snowy conditions is to use "threshold" or "squeeze braking". This is done by applying the brakes firmly to a point just short of lock up, and then easing off the brake pedal slightly. Applying steady pressure is better than "pumping the brakes" and should be practiced on dry pavement prior to driving on snow.

• Anticipate potential danger such as ice on bridges, snow-covered lane markings, stalled cars and poor visibility. Adjust speed, increase distance between other cars or change lanes to avoid trouble. Watch out for other divers who may be unprepared for changing road conditions.

• In a skid, ease off the accelerator and don't lock up the brakes. Carefully steer in the direction you want the car to go and straighten the wheel as soon as the car begins to go in the desired direction.

Always carry booster cables, extra clothing, a shovel, flares and a candles in case you're stranded battery to make sure it is operating properly before winter driving.

A set of booster cables will provide the power you need if your vehicle fails to start in colder weather.

Used motor oil, coolant and batteries can be harmful to the environment, so all should be deposited at local recycling facilities.

OTHER WINTER CAR CARE TIPS...

• Visually check your belts and hoses for cracks, brittle or missing pieces;

• Check your tires to ensure you have adequate tread and inflation for good traction;

• In severe winter conditions, windshield wipers can become brittle and worn. A worn wiper blade can create an irregular wiping pattern and reduce visibility;

• You should change your spark plugs regularly, as recommended by your owner's manual;

• A dirty air filter can limit your vehicle's performance. Change your air filter regularly as recommended in your owner's manual;

• Repair any headlights, brake lights and turn signals that are not working properly;

• Check your brakes, brakelines and fluid before snow and ice cover the roads;

• Enroll in a defensive driving or skid control course to prepare for slippery winter conditions;

• During the winter months, you should store a hat, gloves, boots, blankets, flares, a shovel, a bag of sand, a candle and matches, booster cables, a flashlight and a piece of chocolate for energy in your trunk.

Winterizing your vehicle can make winter driving safe, warm and worry-free.

CAR CARE • FALL AND WINTER '94

It's important to be ready for the hazards of winter:

Even if you drive with caution and common sense, you can still find yourself stuck or stranded by bad weather. That's when you need to remain calm and careful

What would you do if your car gets stuck on the road in the cold of winter? How are you going to keep warm? How could you have avoided getting stuck in the first place?

If you know the answers to these questions, then you're probably quite well prepared for winter driving, but if you don't know the answers, then you should read this advice from Emergency Preparedness Canada, the federal organization responsible for advancing civil preparedness for emergencies of all types.

You might consider membership in the Canadian Automobile Association. If you do a lot of winter driving in isolated regions, you might also consider having a cellular phone.

Heed the warnings

Turn on the radio and listen to the local weather forecast. If you hear warnings of winter weather conditions for blizzards, heavy snow, freezing rain or drizzle, cold waves and winds, then maybe you shouldn't venture out on the highway.

Know the hazards

• Blizzards – a combination of falling, blowing, drifting snow, high winds, low visibility, cold temperatures (less than -10°C); duration – six hours or more.

• Heavy snow. 15 cm or more in 12 hours.

• Freezing rain. An ice storm coating roads, trees, overhead wires, etc. with ice.

• Winds. The cause of blizzard conditions, drifting, reduced visibility and wind-chill effects. Weather offices issue warnings when a wind chill (rate of cooling) of 2,000 watts per square metre is expected. This is cold enough to freeze a person's face in less than a minute. (Equivalent to -40°C.)

When you travel

• Drive with caution. Measure your speed to conditions. Be defensive.

• Don't press on. If the going gets tough, turn back or seek refuge.

• Try to keep to main roads.

• Make sure you have ample gasoline.

• Don't be foolhardy

• Keep your radio tuned to a local station for weather advice.

If you get trapped

Don't panic. Avoid over-exertion and exposure. Shovelling and bitter cold can kill. Stay in your car. You won't get lost and you'll have a shelter. Keep fresh air in your car. Open a window on the side sheltered from the wind. Run your motor sparingly. Beware of exhaust fumes; ensure the exhaust pipe is not blocked by snow. (REMEMBER – YOU CAN'T SMELL CARBON MONOXIDE FUMES!) You can run the car engine about 10 minutes every half hour – as long as your exhaust system is working well. Set out warning lights or flares. Put on the dome light. Overuse of headlights may run down your battery. Exercise your limbs, hands and feet vigorously. Keep moving and don't fall asleep. Keep watch for traffic or searchers.

Dressing for the cold

Put on a hat as well as extra socks and mittens. Without a hat, you can lose up to 60 percent of your body heat. Add extra outer wear, or a pair of coveralls as the extra layers of clothing will trap warm air near the body, acting as insulation. (Caution: do not drink alcohol in bitter cold as it lowers the body temperature.)

The hazards of winter, photographed earlier this year

Spark plugs need to be replaced every 10,000

A spark plug may look good to the casual observer after 15,000, 20,000 or even 30,000 miles.

So why change plugs after 10,000 miles of use in your family car?

There's a good reason according to experts. The 10,000 mile change recommendation is not actually based on the fact that spark plugs are "worn out" in the strictest sense after 10,000 miles of service.

This figure – selected after extensive spark plug life tests – merely represents a safety factor beyond which plugs may misfire under the sudden demands of peak acceleration or extremely heavy load.

Gas Economy Drops

It also represents the point at which gas economy begins to drop. In addition, the car is harder to start, power is lost in passing.

A spark plug is considered worn out when it reaches the point where it is likely to misfire – regardless of its appearance. And, contrary to popular opinion, misfiring doesn't necessarily mean the plug didn't create a spark. It means simply that the plug failed to ignite the gasoline properly – whether a spark was produced or not!

A new spark plug with the correct gap setting needs about 5,000 volts to fire. However, as the plug remains in service, constant heat and chemical attack plus electrical erosion cause the gap to become wider, thus increasing the amount of voltage to fire the plug.

CAR CARE • FALL AND WINTER '94

Improper jump starts can be hazardous

Connect positives first, then good battery negative to the other vehicle's frame

Using the wrong procedure to jump-start a dead car battery can result in an explosion, damage to the car's electrical system or serious personal injury, the Canadian Automobile Association warns.

"Correctly jump-starting a car is essential because batteries contain liquid acid and a potentially explosive gas", said Ron Horton, Director of Club Services, CAA Peterborough.

Unlike the batteries used to power toys and flashlights, an improperly connected car battery can damage electrical components.

When attempting to jump-start a car, never smoke or work near an open flame and remove all jewelry to reduce the chance of a spark caused by accidental contact with a battery post. Always wear safety glasses, use good quality cables and never attempt to jump-start a battery that is cracked or damaged.

• Start the engine on the car providing the jump. When you attempt to start the disabled vehicle, follow the starting procedures outlined in the owner's manual and don't crank the starter for more than 10 seconds. If it doesn't start, let the starter cool for several minutes before trying again.

• once the disabled car is running, disconnect the jumper cables in the reverse order from which they were connected.

Because headlight use increases during winter months due to shorter daylight hours and bad weather, more motorists forget to turn headlights off and are unable to start their cars.

"Vehicle manufacturers can help minimize this problem if they will design vehicles that automatically turn headlights off when the ignition key is removed, but allow motorists to leave parking lights on", Horton said. Parking lights draw far less current than headlights, allowing the car to be started up to several hours later if they are left on.

Myths & Facts:

Friendly advice about cars is rampant. But much of it is based on myths that can harm your car, or its occupants. here are some acts every car owner should know.

Myth: Correct air pressure is marked on the tires.

Tire pressure depends on the type of car, not the tire. The manufacturer's tire-pressure advice is on a label on the door jamb or in the owner's manual, which should be in the glove compartment.

Myth: Punctured tubeless tires can be repaired, without removing the tire, with a plug installed from the outside.

A punctured tire should be removed from the wheel and thoroughly inspected for damage. Punctures should be patched on the inside. Before being remounted on your car, the tire also should be balanced.

Myth: When using your jumper cables, the red cable should be clamped to the red-coloured positive battery terminals.

Not all jumper cables have a red wire, and not all batteries are marked red on the positive terminal.

Trying to match colours may lead to attaching the cables incorrectly. Check symbols on the batteries to ensure you connect positive to positive and negative to negative.

Myth: All automatic-transmission fluids are the same.

Beware of transmission fluids that claim to be universal; special lubricating oils differ greatly. The owner's manual or transmission dipstick shows the type of fluid to use. Don't depend on product labels to buy automotive fluids.

Myth: Revving the engine before turning it off makes it easier to start.

This practice can hurt the car. Unburned gasoline can wash lubricating oil from internal engine surfaces, creating extra wear when the engine starts again. Revving also speeds a turbocharger while cutting off its oil supply. A turbocharged engine should idle for 30 seconds before stopping.

Myth: Only front wheels need to be aligned.

With independent rear suspension, the rear must be adjusted as frequently as the front. A misaligned rear suspension causes tires to wear out faster by wearing unevenly.

Savour autumn colours while they are still here

Senior League

Winnifred Barnum - 286-2140

October has arrived with its blaze of beautiful coloured leaves.

Sunday, Estella Burch came to read to us even though she had to drive to Toronto when she finished the reading. In the evening the chapel service was taken by Rev. John Burgess with Jean Mason playing the organ.

Judy Stevenson had Sunday with her family and friends to celebrate her birthday which was October 4. They had lunch in the auditorium.

Monday afternoon we were treated to a fashion show of the Lantana clothing line. Commentator for the event was Marlene Shortreed. Models were Dottie Muirhead, Ellen Holden, Kathy Woods, Donna Black, Sandy Lawrence and Donna Wallace. The show was a fund-raiser for the outdoor activities area. We thank everyone for their support. Special thanks to Dottie Muirhead, Bonnie Fullan and Ellen Holden for selling tickets. After the show a luncheon was served and the residents were able to order the clothing. The show was a huge success.

Tuesday chapel service was conducted by Barbara Trocewicz. Tuesday afternoon, under the direction of Dottie Muirhead and Donna Wallace, we made decorations for Thanksgiving. Corinne Arsenault had cards in the evening.

Wednesday, we had fitness and at 11 a.m. the bus was loaded to go to the Brown Owl for our lunch. We had a very enjoyable lunch and thank the owners for their hospitality. The helpful volunteers were Donna Wallace, Dottie Muirhead and Nancy Hibrandt, a new volunteer. Of course, the old faithfuls, Doris and Linda, took us. We loaded the bus again and drive to Kawartha Dairy for ice cream, donated by Donna Wallace whom we thank sincerely. In the evening, we had music and singing by Bill Payne and Eldon Deacon. They were joined by Jack on the piano and Audrey Adair helping with the singing. Jack and Audrey are cousins of Mabel Deacon. It was an enjoyable evening.

The Thursday tea party was hosted by Chris Dollo, Kathleen Cannon and Betty Herlihey. They provided a delicious lunch and once again we thank them for their faithfulness. The entertainment was by boys and girls from the Messiah Christian Academy founded by Don Waterhouse. It is located in the former Martin executive offices in Harcourt. The children sang hymns and choruses and improvisational sketches. They were very good. Thursday evening Lee Ann Schlosser called bingo for us. Thank you, Lee Ann.

Friday afternoon, happy hour proved successful with entertainment provided by Mike and Connie Biagi and Frank Faulkner. We enjoyed their music. Doris played the piano. Volunteers were Bonnie Fullan, Pearl Cowan and Dottie Muirhead, who brought a treat of chocolate and plain rice krispie squares.

We had the turkey draw during happy hour. The lucky winners were Jenny Wright, Joan Sawyer and Linda Fry. Nice going, ladies.

Friday evening we were treated to some special entertainment. We enjoyed the talents of the world famous comedian, Adam Timoon. He played the guitar and sang. He asked different residents their names and would sing a number and put their name in it. It was most enjoyable to say the least! All this was made possible by Rick Tustin, the owner of the "new" Red Umbrella Inn. Thank you so much Rick for your thoughtfulness and to Adam Timoon for your wonderful comical entertainment.

Welcome to May Mann our newest resident.

The colours are still beautiful. If you haven't seen them yet, hurry and get out before the beauty has gone for another year.

Our whole-hearted thanks to everyone mentioned above.

Compensation info available

The Ontario Criminal Injuries Compensation Board hears claims for compensation from innocent victims of crimes of violence occurring within the province of Ontario.

Applications must be received within one year of the injury or death of the victim (whether or not charges have been laid); extensions may be granted under special circumstances.

Documentation is required to support the claim and an investigation may be required.

The hearing process is gentle and informal, may be public or private depending on the crime.

Awards may reflect medical costs, lost wages, pain and suffering, lost support if you are a dependent, funeral expenses, and even child support in the event of pregnancy by rape.

Sir Sam's 30th anniversary

From humble beginnings to state of the art skiing

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

WHEN THE FIRST SKI LIFT arrived thirty years ago and was unloaded from the truck, Sir Sam's Ski Area owner Bob Bishop and friend Ron Sisson sat atop the open crates, scratching their heads in awe. Having never seen a T-Bar, let alone installed one, the two of them spent three days wondering "how on earth all these pieces might eventually go together."

In the end, of course, Sisson and his crew managed to put the lift together after three months of work and, amazingly, three decades later it's still running smoothly, much like the operation itself which celebrated its thirtieth anniversary on Saturday with a an open house. "Back then we didn't have any ready-mix trucks so we had to deliver the gravel and cement to each spot which was very time-consuming," Bishop recalls. "Most of the ones from that era are replaced by now but this one is still running strong."

Hard work and manual labour were crucial during those early years. Before the purchase of a grooming machine in 1972, Bob and Noreen Bishop's son, Rob (who along with the Bishops' four other children Chris, John David, Steve and Angela have taken over ownership of the area) spent evenings after each snowfall grooming the trails and hills. The hard way.

"All we had for grooming were two snowmobiles and Rob and his friend would start after school and go up and down cutting paths. They wouldn't get home until late at night."

Following the installation of the first ski lift, expansion of the site snowballed to include the construction of the original two-storey chalet in 1969 which still stands today, three new trails and a double-chair lift in 1972, and the first addition to the chalet in 1975. In 1982 a second chair lift was built and three more trails forged.

The installation of that second lift stands out in Bishop's memories. "It was Christmas Day and I was sitting in this brand new chair lift and there was no snow to be found anywhere in the area," laughs the animated Bishop. "And it didn't snow that year until January 17th."

It wasn't until 1987, with a surge of visitors and popularity of the area growing, the future finally arrived in the form of a snowmaking system. "That was really our breakthrough year and since then our numbers have continued to climb and we haven't looked back," Bishop said pointing out that the first year it opened, Sir Sam's took in a total revenue of $936.75. Now, on an average day, "we take in as many people as we did that whole first year."

With the recent addition of a quad ski lift and further expansion to the chalet, the total investment over the thirty years now exceeds $5.5 million.

Bishop attributes the steady growth to "patience and perserverence. The area had to grow and mature. It's taken 30 years for that to occur. It used to be that you could drive up the road and there was nothing but now you have houses and cottages and all kinds of development."

When the Bishops first bought the ski hill, the property included the former hunting lodge/summer home of Sir Sam Hughes, the World War I Minister of the Militia who was also this riding's Member of Parliament.

"He assembled the acreage and purchased several pieces of property and when we came along the history of the place was of interest to us and we wanted to take advantage of it."

The Bishops turned the lodge, which was then called Glen Eagle, into Sir Sam's Inn and ran it as a family until 1979, when they sold it to the present owner, James Orr. But the Bishops retained the Ski Area and now all the children are involved with the operation. Chris has taken over the role of marketing manager, Steve the role of bar manager while J.D. is responsible for the snowmaking and grooming and Angela supervises the kitchen staff and rental shop.

Sharing duties in a family-run business, said Chris, "doesn't always work out with some families but for us it does because we all work so closely together."

He said that after growing up in the business, which opened when he was seven, now having full-time involvement was a "natural progression."

"It was great as a kid coming here. Our whole winters were spent here skiing and it was like a big house," said Chris recalling fond memories of Saturday night dances and teenage romances.

As one of the province's most popular ski areas, Bishop welcomes his guests as though he is welcoming them into his home. "It's a family atmosphere and we make it feel like a house, a place where parents can just drop their kids off and leave them for the day, which they do."

Among the friends and family who came to celebrate the anniversary bash Saturday was Ray Sisson, who helped to build the original chalet back in 1967. "Putting in all the cement footings was tough work," he said adding "there's been quite an expansion since them though."

Former ski instructor and manager of the Sir Sam's Inn, Ed Tustin, said that "it is the total atmosphere" that he has missed since leaving several years ago. "I've been to other resorts here and all over the United States and they may have other types of things but as far as a concept place you can't replace this. Money can't buy this type of atmosphere."

Clean clothing donations wanted at St. Margaret's Anglican church

Wilberforce

Flo Elliott - 448-2618

There will be Thrift Sales at St. Margaret's Anglican Church on Saturday mornings throughout the month of October from 10 a.m. until 12 o'clock. A big thank you to all the folks who contributed to these sales. The ladies of the church would like all donations of clothing to be clean and in good repair and folded. It makes it much easier to get things ready.

The Messiah Christian School from Elephant Lake visited the Hyland Crest Seniors Home on Thursday, October 6. The children had a presentation for the seniors and then they stayed for afternoon tea and a visit. It was very enjoyable for all, as the seniors always love to see the children.

The monthly lunches at Hyland Crest Recreational Center will be held on the second Tuesday of each month from 11:30 until 1 o'clock. The cost is $3 for seniors and $3.30 for others.

The Monmouth Seniors Club has started some new activities. If any senior would like to take bridge lessons, please call Ernie Hemphill at 448–2340. If you would like to have a walk and need someone to walk with, there is a walking group beginning on October 18. Please call Margaret Jeske for times and places. There are other activities available; please call the president Floyd Tighe at 448–2546 for more information.

The club would welcome more members at any time. You may come for a visit and lunch and enjoy a card game, just to see what it is like before you decide to join. It's a pleasant way to spend a winter afternoon.

The Monmouth Agricultural Turkey Dinner on October 8 was a huge success. The tables kept filling up so fast it was hard to keep up with the dish washing. But what a delicious meal it was. A large plate of delicious turkey with all the trimmings with a variety of pie followed. People are really beginning to look forward to this annual dinner.

Prior to the dinner, from 4:30 to 5:00, a short program gave a hearty blend to the festive season with music and songs by Jack Foster of Minden. During this period the awards were presented.

The Fair Board awards, presented by Mrs. Bessie Shackleton, for the highest points in the Junior Domestic Division went to Gavin Swan of Harcourt winning $10 and to his sister Jessie Swan winning second and receiving $5. For a number of years the Lions Club have provided the trophy to the winner of the Senior Domestic Division. This year Ron Barr represented the Lions Club and presented the trophy to Melanie Lewis of Harcourt.

Awards for the poster and essay contest sponsored through the fair resulted in seven presentations. Winners were Kindergarten: 1st Trish Vanier of Wilberforce Elementary School winning $10, and 2nd, Barry Bolahood of Gertrude Colpus School, Oshawa winning $5. Presentation were made by Dorothy Sanderson.

Grades 1 and 2: 1st, Paige Bolahood of Gertrude Colpus School of Oshawa, winning $10. Presentation made by Cindy Sanderson.

Grades 3 & 4 essay: 1st, Matthew Sanderson of Our Lady of Perpetual Help School, Toronto winning $20 and Daniel Vanier of Wilberforce Elementary School winning $10. Presentations were made by Miles Sanderson.

Grade 5 & 6: 1st, Elizebeth of Central Public School, Grimsby winning $20; 2nd, Jessica Bolahood of Gertrude Colpus School, Oshawa winning $10. Presentations were made by Ken Sanderson.

There were no entries in Grades 7 and 8.

Each winner received the Charles Daniel Sanderson Memorial Certificate containing the following wording: This contest is sponsored by the Sanderson families to encourage students to exercise their literary abilities and develop skills in art and writing. Your talents can be a living memorial to one who loved and practised the skills of penmanship.

Our thanks and appreciation go to Mr. Glendinning for his contribution of time to judge the entries.

Happy trails to newlyweds

West Guilford

Eleanor Cooper - 754-2388

Belated best wishes to Beth Wilkinson and David Bryan whose wedding reception was held at the Centre on October 1.

Heather Harrington of Calgary has been home with her parents, Ted and Carol Duncan for a few weeks.

If you would like to send a card, Holly Sisson is in Room 221, Civic Hospital, Peterborough, Ontario.

Best wishes for good health continue for Brad Bryant, now in hospital with back problems; also, to Cecelia Scott, who is somewhat confined due to foot injuries.

Maple Lake United Church conducted a successful sale of baked goods, craft (including Christmas) items, and a "looney tea" i.e. muffin, tea or coffee for a looney.

Under the sad news is the sudden death of Brian Abbs who died in hospital on October 13, 1994. Our sympathy is with the immediate family and the Harrisons as well.

October 21 is auction time at St. George's Auction of talent is presented as well as the actual items and is preceded by pot luck soup and bread supper at 5:30.

Thanksgiving service a success

Carnarvon

Ann McKay - 489-2924

Mr. and Mrs. Bill McKay spent a week at their cottage at Matagami Lake in Northern Ontario.

Norman Wallace had all of his family home for the Thanksgiving holidays.

The Thanksgiving Sunday service at Zion was a festival of music with the combined chorus of the Haliburton United Church and the Carnarvon Choir. The singing was superb and gave us a warm and thankful feeling.

Fred Gregory of Ottawa was home for the weekend with this parents Hazel and and Jack.

There was a misprint in the date of the fashion show. It is the twenty-eighth of Oct.

We were shocked to learn of the passing ofBrian Abbs and extend our sympathies to his family. His wife Iris was a Carnarvon girl and is a sister toYvonne Penney.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Watts of Los Angeles, California are visiting with relatives in the area Alice is a twin sister to Sinclair Russell.

It was with sadness we learned of the sudden death of Eunice Wright on Friday. Her husband Truman was my boss for many years at the Frost Centre where he met his wife. He has all our sympathies and to her family, the Stamps, of West Guilford.
